AN ARMED TRUCE IS THE SIT-UATION.

MATAFA TALKS OF AFFAIRS.

FOLLOWERS WILL NOT STAND
MALIETOA'S RULE.

Apia, Samoa, May 17 (via Auckland, N. Z., May 25).—The Samoan commission (consisting of Bartlett Tripp, former United States minister to Austria-Hungary; Baron Speck von Sternberg, representing Germany, and C. N. Eliot, C. B. of the British embassy at Washington, representing Great Britain), arrived here on May 13. Its first sitting took place May 16. The commissioners were engaged all that morning in conferring with Chief Justice William L. Chambers. Nothing was disclosed regarding the deliberations, but it is reported that they will uphold the action of Admiral Kautz, the American naval commander.

Matafa sent the commissioners a letter of welcome and expressed the hope that they would satisfactorily end the troubles in Samoa.

It is understood Matafa will obey the unanimous order of the commission, though it is doubtful whether he will order his followers to disarm, unless the Malietoas are first disarmed.

The Matafans will probably disperse to their homes if ordered to do so, but they will never recognize Malietoa as king, and, doubtless, there will be further trouble in the future if the kingship is maintained.

Only one or two cases are known of the wounding of natives by the shell fire of the war ships and, as they have not realized the strength of the Europeans, they may go to greater extremes if war arises again.

The rebels remain outside the lines indicated by the admiral and have strongly fortified a new position, while the loyalists are being drilled and have fortified Mulinu. A considerable number of loyalists have been brought by the warships from other islands.

Half the male adults of Samoa are awaiting action upon the part of the commission in order to support Malietoa.

The Germans are preparing compensation claims. It is understood one German firm claims $30,000 and that other German subjects claim $20,000.

The British consul, E. B. S. Maxse, invited them to put in their claims and it is understood the commission will adjudicate them.

Replying to questions submitted to him by a correspondent of The Associated Press, Matafa said it was the head chiefs and not himself who began the war, adding that they did so because they were angered at powers being taken from them by violence and also because they were made angry by the chief justice's unjust decision.

Matafa claims he has upheld the treaty and said his orders throughout were not to fire upon the Europeans and that but for this order the whole party of blue jackets could several times have been shot down by large bodies of natives concealed in the bush.

ARMISTICE NOT DISTURBED.

Berlin, May 25.—A dispatch received here from Apia, Samoa, says the armistice was not disturbed on the arrival there of the Samoan commission and that letters were being exchanged with the view of disbanding the rival forces.

SOLDIERS KILL RIOTERS.

St. Petersburg, May 25.—Further advices from Riga, capital of the Baltic province of Livonia, say that the military in suppressing the rioting between Lettish and Lithuanian workmen at that place on Saturday and Sunday last, killed twelve persons and wounded fifty.

TWO PERSONS CREMATED.

New York, May 25.—Two persons, a man and a woman, perished in a fire that destroyed a lodging house kept by Fay Hilton, in West Forty-seventh street, early today. The man was known by the name of Thompson, and he was supposed to be a fish dealer. The other victim was a negro, whose name is not known, who was killed by jumping from the top story of the building. The fire had gained great headway before it was discovered, and Thompson was suffocated in his room. The loss on the building is $20,000. Mrs. John Roathberg, eighty-five years old, was fatally burned in trying to escape from a burning tenement at Rivington and Pitt streets.

GERMAN MASONS MEET.

Detroit, Mich., May 25.—The Circle of German-American Free Mason lodges, representing 210,000 Masons of German birth or parentage, held its third annual convention today in the Masonic Temple auditorium. The session, which was secret, was devoted largely to reports of officers and committees, and general discussion of the fraternity's interests. This afternoon the delegates and their local hosts boarded the steamer Sappho for a lake and river excursion.

WAR VETERANS ON PARADE.

BIG TIME AT TERRE HAUTE ENCAMPMENT.

Largest Crowd in the City's History—Next Encampment Goes to the State Capital.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 25.—Yesterday afternoon, for the first time since 1891, it was demonstrated that no city outside of Indianapolis wants the State G. A. R. encampment in 1900, so it goes to the capital by unanimous vote. The official meeting of the encampment is the most quiet in the history of the organization.

The convention of the Woman's Relief Corps was a lively session and resulted in the election of Mrs. Maria Slater, of Logansport, for president. She received 201 votes to 150 for Mrs. Zinn, of Indianapolis. Mrs. Samantha West Miller, of Indianapolis, would have received a large vote had she not withdrawn her name before the balloting began. Her vote went to Mrs. Slater, who was brought forward when Mrs. Davis, of Michigan City, could not attend.

It was the big day of the encampment, fully 30,000 people being in the city. The parade was a great success. The Grand Army turned out in large numbers. The National Guard showed the discipline of the past year in its splendid marching. The Culver Black Horse Cavalry and the infantry attracted much attention, as well as the civic and local military organizations. An immense crowd lined sidewalks and streets through which the procession passed. A notable feature was the marching of the Terre Haute school boys. The governor and his staff in full uniforms added brilliancy to the occasion.

EXPRESS DELIGHT AT THEIR TREATMENT.

Manila, May 25.—5:30 p. m.—The Filipino commissioners left here by special train today. They will be escorted to their lines under a flag of truce. It is expected they will return soon.

President Gonzaga, of the Philippine commission, previous to his departure, said: "We greatly appreciate the courtesy shown us. We have spent some time with your commissioners, incidentally considering the American constitution. Its principles impress us profoundly.

"The plan of government offered the Philippines seems, in theory, a good colonial system. But why should a nation with your constitution seek to make a colony of a distant people who have been so long fighting against Spain to secure the same rights your constitution gives? You fought the same battle in America when you fought against England."

In the fighting at San Fernando yesterday fifty Filipinos were killed and many were wounded. The Americans had two men killed and twelve wounded.

OTIS REPORTS FIGHTING.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—General Otis has forwarded the following dispatch to the war department: "Manila, May 25.—Adjutant General, Washington: On 23d instant, Third Infantry returning to Baling from San Miguel was attacked morning, noon and evening by a large force of enemy, suffering in casualties two men killed and thirteen wounded; enemy repulsed, leaving on the field sixteen killed; large number wounded and prisoners.

"Yesterday enemy appeared in vicinity San Fernando, attacked by Kansas and Montana regiments, which suffered slight loss.

"Enemy driven through rice fields, leaving fifty dead, thirty-eight wounded and twenty-eight prisoners; fifty rifles and other property captured; their retreat through swamp land saved them from destruction; Lawton returning, leaving with McArthur on the front regular troops to replace volunteers. Otis."

OLYMPIA IN DRY DOCK.

New York, May 25.—A dispatch to the Herald from Hong Kong says: The cruiser Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, will go into dry dock Thursday. She will probably leave for home in ten days.

LAWTON AT MALOLO.

New York, May 25.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says: General Lawton is at Malolos with practically his entire command. He is withdrawing to the railroad as the region is difficult to hold during the rainy season. The roads will be impassable in a few days. As supply bases, small garrisons will control the navigation at points on the rivers Rio Grande, Hahaga and San Fernando.

SUDDENLY STRICKEN.

August Gerberding, an aged and much respected citizen residing at 103 Erie street, was seized with a congestive chill this morning while at work, and is in a serious condition. Mr. Gerberding was engaged in planting potatoes and a little girl who was assisting him saw him sink to the ground. She summoned assistance and he was conveyed to his residence, where Dr. Schilling attended him. He is believed to be in no immediate danger, but the outcome cannot be foretold.

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A district convention of the Baptist Young People's union will be in session at the Tabernacle Baptist church, of this city, May 26, 27 and 28. Delegates are expected from Bluffton, Columbia City, South Bend, Muncie, Garrett, Auburn, South Whitley, Huntington, Bel River and other neighboring towns. The first session will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A good program has been prepared. Everyone interested in young people's work is invited to attend this convention. A special invitation is extended to members of the Y. P. S. C. E. and Epworth league.

DIVORCE CASES.

Ida M. Peterson, through her attorney, John H. Aiken, this afternoon commenced suit for divorce against Charles E. Peterson. The complaint alleges failure to provide, abandonment and cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple were married June 1, 1898, and lived together until June 1, 1898, when plaintiff alleges defendant abandoned her and took with him their child, Ewart, aged eight years. She asks for a decree of divorce and custody of the child.

In the superior court Edward Holms asks for a divorce from Emma Holms. F. E. Colerick is plaintiff's attorney.

GEORGE S. DEWEY IS IN TOWN.

HE IS A SON OF THE HERO OF MANILA BAY.

A Modest Young Man Who Sells Dry Goods and Won't Talk of His Father's Deeds.

George S. Dewey, only son of Admiral Dewey, the hero of Manila, arrived in the city last evening, and has been spending the day in Fort Wayne. Mr. Dewey registered at the New Avenue as "Geo. S. Dewey, N. Y.," and was seen this afternoon at DeWald & Co.'s store by a representative of The Sentinel.

Mr. Dewey is connected with the commission house of Joy, Langdon & Co., of New York, and is in the city purely on a business trip. The firm of DeWald & Co. have known him in a business way for some years.

Mr. Dewey is a very modest and unassuming young man, and, like his distinguished father, shrinks from attracting attention. The features of the admiral are plainly traceable in his countenance, and while his greeting was pleasant and cordial, he declined to talk for publication.

"I am in business, not in the navy," said he, "and am not in position to talk. I greatly prefer to keep out of the newspapers, and while I am extremely glad to meet newspaper men personally, I cannot say anything for publication."

Mr. Dewey leaves the city early this evening for New York.

FOR WIFE DESERTION.

In the circuit court today the attention of Judge O'Rourke and a jury had been taken with the evidence in the case of Goldie Ellenwood vs. Warren Ellenwood, in which the wife charges her husband with desertion. The case is being bitterly contested, with A. H. Bittering and P. B. Colerick representing the plaintiff and J. B. Harper the defendant. The arguments will not be heard until tomorrow.

JEFFERSONIAN LEAGUE.

A meeting of the Jeffersonian league will be held Friday evening in the circuit court room at which time it is desired that all young democrats shall be present. Bryan day will be discussed and it is probable that some arrangements will be made to greet the great democratic leader.

A CHANGE OF VENUE.

In the superior court today W. G. Colerick, representing the plaintiffs in the case of Sarah J. King et al. vs. Hugh G. Keegan, trustee of the J. F. Schell Loan and Investment company, filed an application asking for a change of venue from Special Judge Hench. The case was sent to Judge O'Rourke, who will now rule on the petition for a temporary restraining order.

ISSUES PUT ASIDE.

NOT DISCUSSED AT THE ST.
LOUIS MEETING.

THE LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMEN IN SESSION.

COL. W. J. BRYAN IS PRESENT.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IS CANVASSED.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—With twenty-two members present in person, the democratic national committee went into secret session at 10 o'clock this morning, at the Planters' hotel. The committeemen present were: Henry D. Clayton, Alabama; Thomas C. McRae, Arkansas; Adair Wilson, Colorado; Alexander Troop, Connecticut; Clark Howell, Jr., Georgia; Thomas Gahan, Illinois; John G. Shanklin, Indiana; C. A. Walsh, Iowa; J. G. Johnson, Kansas; Urey Woodson, Kentucky; T. D. O'Brien, Minnesota; W. B. Sullivan, Mississippi; W. J. Stone, Missouri; W. H. Thompson, Nebraska; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina; J. M. Griffin, Pennsylvania; James M. Woods, South Dakota; James M. Head, Tennessee; James J. Dudley, Texas; Peter J. Otey, Virginia; John T. McGraw, West Virginia; W. N. Holliday, Wyoming; Thomas Marcum, Indian Territory.

Governor Stone stated the object of the meeting as set out in the call. He was then elected chairman. Mr. Walsh was in his place as secretary. J. M. Griffin, of Pennsylvania, who was present as proxy for Committeeman Harvitt, of that state, made a total representation of twenty-three states. Committeeman Stone, of Missouri, presided, and immediately after calling the meeting to order announced that reports of organizations and conditions in the different states were desired.

One by one the representatives of the different states outlined the conditions existing at home and the reports were accepted without recommendations of any kind.

Not one of the speakers touched upon the trusts, imperialism or silver.

After the committee had been in session an hour, Mr. Bryan was introduced and made a short address urging the members to look closely after the organizations in their states, and suggesting that strong efforts be made to provide a campaign fund for the coming campaign.

He made no specific suggestions, merely talking in a general way regarding the great advantage of organizations.

The fight of the Illinois democracy against Editor Devlin, of the National committee press bureau, was then taken up by Committeeman Gahan, of Illinois. He made a vigorous speech claiming that Devlin had acted against the regular democratic organization in Illinois, and that he should be removed. A motion was carried appointing a committee of three to investigate the Devlin matter and report to Chairman Jones upon his return from abroad. Mr. Stone appointed on the committee of investigation Messrs. Johnson, of Kansas, and Daniels, of North Carolina, the third man to be named later.

At 1:30 the conference adjourned to meet again at 3. It was officially announced that the meeting this afternoon would be along the same lines as that of this morning, matters relating to organization to be chiefly considered. No action regarding planks in the next platform is expected.

SOME OF THE GOSSIP.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—C. A. Walsh, of Ottumwa, Iowa, the secretary of the democratic national committee, recently returned from the Klondike, reached here early today.

"I was not quite as far off as they thought I was," said Mr. Walsh. "I have been in Ottawa, Canada, for the last four months, looking after some mining matters, and when I saw by the papers that this meeting had been called, I just thought I would run down and attend it. I don't know anything more than I have read regarding the objects of the meeting."

Mr. Bryan, when he arrived from Pittsburg, Ill., was very hoarse, but thought he would be able to speak at the banquet.

John F. Altgeld, of Illinois, arrived this morning and immediately set to work to repair the damage done to his fences yesterday by the Harrison forces of Illinois.

"I guess they will not impair my usefulness to any great extent," he said. "I intend to continue right along as I have been."

A number of politicians arrived early and long before the time set for the meeting of the national committee the lobbies of the Planters' hotel were filled.

They were all in a state of general uncertainty regarding the outcome of the meeting, but the feeling is growing stronger every hour that silver will not be dropped as a party issue. It is asserted on all sides that it will be a factor in the next campaign.

There Will Be a Reception in the Afternoon and Probably a Short Speech.

It is definitely settled that Col. William J. Bryan will reach Fort Wayne shortly before noon Saturday. In the afternoon if the people gathered in the city desire it there will be a short informal address by Colonel Bryan either at the base ball park or from the balcony of the Randall hotel. If the weather should prove inclement the afternoon meeting will doubtless be held at the Princess rink. After the speech in the afternoon there will be a public reception at the Randall hotel and all who may care to do so will have an opportunity to extend personal greeting to the next presidential candidate of the democratic party.

These matters were arranged last evening at a meeting of the reception committee of the Bimetallie league held in the circuit court room and presided over by Hon. R. C. Bell, chairman of the committee. Much business was transacted at the meeting last night. Seventy-five stage seats will be reserved and tickets issued for them to a selected list to be furnished by a subcommittee of which Judge W. G. Colerick, William Kaough and Edward Parker are the members. Hon. R. C. Bell, Mayor Henry P. Scherer, Judge S. M. Hench, Sheriff A. E. Melching and County Chairman William Kaough are the committee which will escort Mr. Bryan from Danville, Ill., to Fort Wayne, Saturday, and the party will be received at the train by Judge W. G. Colerick and Judge Edward O'Rourke. Immediately upon arrival Colonel Bryan will be driven to the West Wayne street residence of R. C. Bell for luncheon. Apart from his public appearances Colonel Bryan will be the guest of Senator Bell while in the city.

A decision was reached that all members of the county democratic central committee outside of Fort Wayne should be added to the reception committee to represent their respective townships. The secretary of the Bimetallie union was instructed to procure badges for the reception committee. These badges may be procured of Deputy Auditor Parker at the court house. A vote of the meeting resulted in choice of the Randall hotel as headquarters for all committees on Bryan day and it was determined that any public reception held should take place there.

Several sub-committees were appointed, among them one to supervise the work of the general reception committee in the matter of meeting out of town delegations at depots. Herman W. Felts, George Louttit, Herman Michael and O. P. Eversole compose this subcommittee.

The place of holding the afternoon meeting is not yet definitely known, but the public will be amply apprised of it when selection has been made.

Word from the country and neighborhood towns and cities give assurance that the crowd will be enormous. There has been no change from original plans which make the evening meeting at the rink the formal occasion of Mr. Bryan's appearance.

RAILROAD MEN COMING.

The Big Four and the Lake Shore officials are today inspecting the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville road (Muncie line), one of the Brice lines, and will arrive in the city this evening.

This is significant, inasmuch as it has been rumored that the Vanderbilts had about concluded to buy the Brice interests, which means the controlling interest in the Lake Erie and Western railroad.

Miss Mulqueen will give her closing reception of the season at the academy, on Calhoun street, this evening.

TWICE MAYOR OF FORT WAYNE

HIS DEATH CAUSES SINCERE SORROW.

Charles F. Muhler, ex-mayor of the city and for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Fort Wayne, was stricken with apoplexy near his office on North Calhoun street, last evening, and died a few minutes later without regaining consciousness. No recent death in this city has so shocked the people of Fort Wayne who have known and honored and esteemed Mr. Muhler throughout his long and active life. Without a moment's warning, without an intimation of the impending danger, his life was cut off at a time when he seemed in the best of health and his radiant spirits were in the full enjoyment of the largest measure of life's happiness.

The saddening intelligence spread over the city with the greatest rapidity, and it came as a personal loss to the public. Mr. Muhler had never seemed in better health and spirits than last evening. He ate a hearty supper at his home at the corner of Wayne and Fulton streets, and later engaged in a romp with his children, until Rev. Father Durham, of the Cathedral, called. He visited with the clergyman until a few minutes after 8 o'clock, and as Father Durham departed Mr. Muhler accompanied him as far as the gate, where they parted. It was Mr. Muhler's invariable custom to walk to his office in the evening to spend some time looking over business affairs and chatting with friends, and immediately after Father Durham rode away on his wheel Mr. Muhler started down Wayne street on this mission. He walked to Calhoun and turned north, greeting his friends on every hand with a pleasant word and a cheery smile for each. As he approached his office his son, Charles F. Muhler, who was at work upon the books there, saw his father crossing the Nickel Plate tracks and again turned to his books. William Hatch, who conducts a sample room next to his office, was standing in front of his place of business and Mr. Muhler stopped a few moments to converse with him. Mr. Hatch says Mr. Muhler was in good spirits, and talked and whistled in a happy vein. Three customers entered the Hatch saloon and the proprietor passed inside to wait upon them, leaving Mr. Muhler standing in front of the place. As one of the customers passed out of the saloon he hastily returned with terror pictured upon his face and reported that a man was lying upon the sidewalk. Mr. Hatch hurried out and found Mr. Muhler lying face down upon the pavement and unconscious.

He called to Mr. Muhler's son, who, with the assistance of Mr. Hatch, carried the prostrate man into the office and sent a hurried call to Dr. W. H. Myers. Mr. Muhler was entirely unconscious and was gasping for breath. A few minutes later he passed away. Dr. Myers arrived quickly, but the soul of Charles F. Muhler had taken its flight and his earthly career was ended. The remains were taken to Feltier's undertaking establishment and later conveyed to the home, where his devoted wife and children were plunged into a grief too deep for human expression. Many friends called to tender aid and sympathy in the home from Say, Mr. Glasscock, will you please win games hereafter in the earlier innings? Often there are many strangers in the grand stand and many finishes like that of yesterday may create the impression with these strangers that they have broken into an insane asylum instead of a base ball park.

Will Carney, the young man who was so effective against the Fort Waynes in the first game with Youngstown, begged Manager Truby for an opportunity to take one more game from his old comrades and the request was granted. Carney had found only one hat big enough for him after the first game and that was three sizes too large, but another victory, he felt, would so increase the size of his canium that he could wear this headgear without stuffing the inside band.

For eight innings luck was with Mr. Carney and it did appear as if the biggest hat in Fort Wayne was about to find an owner. But there is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip.

At the beginning of the ninth inning the score was 5 to 3 in favor of Youngstown and Bergen and Reiman, the battery, were the first batters up. "It's all off, let's go," remarked a "fan" in the fifteen-cent grand stand when Bergen went out from Carney to Ganzel. Before he could go, however, Norcum walked to the plate to bat instead of Reiman. The "fan" waited and "Doggie" Miller yelled, "If this man gets to first, it's all off." "Doggie" knows the game from A to Z and the "fan" sat down again to await the result of Miller's prophecy. Norcum walked and it was plain to be seen that Carney was getting excited. Miller was happy, too. Flood hit a hot one past first base and when McFarland fielded it in the fast second baseman was perched on the second cushion and Norcum had crossed the rubber. Belden grabbed his bat and promised the newspaper gang that he would hit the ball over the fence. "One ball," shouted Umpire Colgan. Carney was mad and sent a speedy one right at the heart of the plate. "One strike," but Colgan stopped. Belden had not missed the sphere. A loud whack and the ball was seen to fly through the air like a swallow and drop on the outer side of the left field fence. It is useless to tell what happened on the bleachers and in the grand stand. Sedate men yelled and jumped. Excitable men went crazy and the ladies beamed with joy. And Carney! He looked daggers at Latimer and his actions indicated that he blamed his catcher for all the trouble. Letcher was next up and he hit the ball hard, but it went straight up and Berte gathered it in. Then "Doggie" Miller lined the ball over the fence to show Belden there were others. Glasscock singled and Kuehne walked and next Hollingsworth hit one to the right field embankment, which McFarland caught and then dropped. Glasscock and Kuehne scored. Bergen went out for the second time.

Guess pitched the ninth inning for Fort Wayne. He hit Van Buren and Connors made a two-bagger, but no runs were scored.

Fort Wayne scored the first run in the first inning. Flood was given a base on balls and went to second on an error by McFarland. Belden hit a pretty single to right and Flood scored.

The visitors scored three in the second. Truby, the first man up, made a home run. Ganzel reached first on four bad balls. McFarland sacrificed and Reiman fumbled the ball and "Mac" reached first. Berte sacrificed. Latimer's single and Belden's wild throw to the plate allowed Ganzel and McFarland to score. Fort Wayne scored two in the third inning on Belden's base on balls, Connors' wild throw, Letcher's single, Miller's base on balls and Glasscock's line hit.

The visitors scored in their half on Pender's single, Connors' sacrifice and a single by Truby.

In the sixth Latimer sent the ball on a line over the fence. These were the only runs except those made in the ninth. Score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

"Chick" Stahl made his usual two hits yesterday. Criger made a home run. George Reiman had one bad inning, but the visitors would have scored only one run then had it not been for two errors.

Flood is suffering with a sprained ankle. He hurt his leg three years ago while skating and has never fully recovered from the injury.

Belden is demonstrating that he is as safe a man to have at bat as any player on the team. He sent the first run over the plate with a single and hit the home run which practically won the game.

McCredie could not accompany his companions to Grand Rapids, but will be sent back to Youngstown. Manager Truby promised him that he would lose no salary while he was on the hospital list.

Fort Wayne plays at Mansfield tomorrow and on Saturday the teams will play a double header. Fort Wayne will play another double-header with New Castle Sunday and on Tuesday will play two games in Grand Rapids.

George Kelb has been reinstated and will be in the box for the Fort Waynes again. Many of the "fans" believed that it was an injustice to release Kelb while he was laid up with an injury received in a ball game. He is a first-class twirler and two of the three games he pitched were victories.

Hollingsworth made two great one-hand stops over second base, but couldn't recover in time to throw the batter out at first. The batters were credited with hits, but there was this much in the stops: It would have been impossible for a base-runner to score from second base, as is usually done on singles. "Holly" is at himself and covers acres of ground.

Eddie Zinram was yesterday notified by President Power that he had been appointed one of the Interstate league's official umpires. He was ordered to report in Mansfield Friday and umpire the games between Fort Wayne and the Haymakers. Zinram has more friends than any player in the Interstate and they will all be pleased to see him make a success with the indicator.

which the dead husband and father had passed but a few hours before in the full enjoyment of health and happiness.

HIS LIFE.

Charles F. Muhler was a native of Fort Wayne and his entire life was spent in this city. He was born April 9, 1841, and was the son of Charles M. and Anna (Stark) Muhler, who came to Fort Wayne in 1840. His father came to America in 1837 from Sulzdorf, Bavaria, Germany. The son grew up amid the usual surroundings of the youth of early days. He attended the Catholic schools and acquired a common school education, to which he later added a vast fund of knowledge from the stern school of experience. His judgment was rarely at fault, and his keen observation compensated largely for the lack of higher education, which was almost an impossibility in those days.

At the age of fifteen he was apprenticed to B. W. Oakley to learn the trade of a tinner, and when Allen & Co. purchased the business Mr. Muhler continued with this firm until 1864. At this time Mr. Muhler purchased Mr. Allen's interest and the firm became Wilson, Shuckman & Muhler. Later the firm changed to Wilson & Muhler and its store on East Columbia street became one of the most prosperous in the city. Mr. Muhler disposed of his interest and after his first term as mayor engaged in the lime and cement business. It has proven very successful and is still continued by his son, Charles B. Muhler.

Mr. Muhler was a heavy owner of real estate and largely interested in manufacturing enterprises. He was a leading spirit in the organization of the Jenney Electric Light and Power company and was its first president, holding stock in the institution until his death. He was also president of the Crescent Paper company, which owns and operates a paper mill at Hartford City, and a heavy stockholder of the company.

TWO KINDS OF DENTISTS.

Tooth treating and filling is known as operative dentistry. The construction of Artificial Teeth, Crown and Bridge Work is mechanical dentistry. Few dentists are equally clever in both classes of work. A test for mechanical work and a great deal of exact experience make a good mechanical dentist. Also a little preference for operative dentistry makes a slightly better dentist. We give our patients the best work of expert hands and business-like putting each branch in charge of skillful operators fitted for it by experience and taste.

Packard

A Perfect Piano

has never been made. There are faults of one kind or another in every piano that was ever built. We claim for the Packard Piano that it is just as well made as we know how, that we use the utmost care in the selection of material, that we employ only the best workmen, that we give all our time and thought and energy to getting into it just as much piano goodness as possible. We could make a piano for less money than the Packard costs, but we won't. No piano can be made to sell for less than the price of the Packard and be good. No piano made to sell at as low a price can be better than the Packard. You can see and hear it at our store.

The Filipinos can't quit fighting; any better than they can fight.
Somehow Senator Peffer's return to the republican party is not received with the acclaim that indicates him to be regarded as a valuable adjunct to that political organization.

The little cabals that have for their object the retirement of Col. W. J. Bryan from leadership of the democratic party can learn a lot of things to their advantage by consulting the rank and file of the democracy.

The death of former Mayor Charles F. Muhler causes a feeling of deep and genuine grief throughout this city. The manner of his taking off made his death almost tragic. He will be sorrowfully missed by an unusual number of warm personal friends and by the community in general. Mr. Muhler was a broad-minded, public-spirited man and his citizenship has been of immense substantial value to the city. He was enterprising and intensely devoted to the welfare of Fort Wayne. It had come to pass that no public improvement for benefiting Fort Wayne was thought to be auspiciously inaugurated until Mr. Muhler was concerned in it, and he was always ready to spare of his time and means to promote all that promised well for the community. It was Mr. Muhler's reputation to have made one of the best chief executives the city has ever had. He was thoroughly practical, long-sighted, clear-minded and ruggedly honest. He was a cheery, genial man, held in uncommon warmth of affection by his closest friends, who were many, and highly esteemed by all who knew him, and there are few in the community who did not. His death is a severe loss to the city's citizenship.

THE CZAR'S OPPORTUNITY.

There is no doubt but that Russia is the most ignorant country claiming to have a civilized government. It is stated on good authority that in 10,000 villages of the empire there is not a school, and that 20 per cent. of the population have not acquired even the rudiments of a common school education.

The church, which in most countries is an educator, official or voluntary, is in Russia rather a promoter of ignorance. The Russian common school priesthood is the most illiterate professing any form of the Christian faith. The army, which in Germany, Great Britain and the United States develops the intelligence of the soldier, in Russia loads on his back the heaviest knapsack in Europe and makes him an unknowing and unthinking machine. Freedom did not bring intelligence to the self. Russia is densely ignorant, and under present conditions will remain so.

The disarmament proposition, if urged in good faith by the czar, and endorsed by the congress at The Hague, would furnish an open door from out this state of ignorance if the czar chose to embrace the opportunity. The money saved by the disarmament of 100,000 men would furnish a school for every Russian village. The disbanded soldiers would become the workmen of Russia and send their children to the schools. The czar seems to have none of the passion for military parades and parades displayed by his royal brother of Germany, and so instead of great army reviews he would be satisfied with the "march past" of 10,000 or 12,000 school children occasionally. In place of laborious military inspections he might make recurring examinations to ascertain how some millions of young Russians were getting along with their alphabet.

Following this line of action the czar might make himself a second and greater Peter the Great. He might reform Russia from the inside. Peter went abroad to seek improvements and to prove himself. Nicholas could stay at home and watch the widening circle of intelligence. Peter forced upon Russia an intelligence borrowed from other nations. Nicholas might foster in Russia a learning of its own.

It should be remembered, however, that the czar, in carrying out these plans would meet a powerful opposition. The holy synod, the main inspirer in Russia of intolerance, bigotry and ignorance, would oppose. The official body of the army would oppose anything looking to the diminution of the army or the uplifting of the body of the people who furnish the soldiers. The conservative alarmists would object that education is the mother of revolution.

But if the czar should persevere. Then his name would be held in honor eternally. He would be called Nicholas the Educator. He would see knowledge improve the quality of the clegy, better infinitely the condition of the soldier, make a man out of the old-time serf, and elevate the empire.

ASSEMBLY SLIGHTS WINONA.

REFUSED TO HEAR A WORD FOR THE PLACE.

M'GIFERT CASE IS REPORTED

MEETINGS OF OTHER CHURCH CONVENTIONS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—In the Presbyterian general assembly today D. W. Glass, of Baltimore, caused a surprise by introducing a resolution directing Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the board of foreign missions, to call a conference of all the evangelical Christian bodies to meet in New York concerning a harmonious arrangement and distribution of the foreign missions. The resolution directed that the Roman Catholics be invited to participate in the conference if Dr. Brown should deem it wise.

The resolution was referred without debate to the board of foreign missions.

The Assembly Herald matter was taken up. Henry W. Jessup, of New York, defended the committee that has been conducting the paper since January 1st, and moved the adoption of the committee recommendations, which include a scheme for the future management of the Herald by a committee of three.

The Assembly Herald matter was settled by the adoption of the committee's report, with the added resolution that the price of the Herald be made twenty-five cents, if possible.

St. Louis will be the next place of meeting. By an overwhelming vote the assembly adopted the committee's report in favor of the Compton avenue and Washington church, of St. Louis. Dr. W. H. McKibben withdrew Cincinnati in favor of St. Louis.

Dr. L. M. Haines, of Indiana, wanted the assembly to listen to a speech in favor of Winona Lake, Ind., but cries of "No" brought the vote. The committee on place of meeting, made up of the moderators, stated and permanent clerks, was given permanent power hereafter to name a place of meeting in case any place agreed upon by the assembly should be unable to entertain the assembly.

Dr. John H. Boyd, chairman of the standing committee on temperance, reported on the work of the special committee. The report of the latter committee has been given heretofore.

Dr. Boyd complained of the revocation of the Alaska prohibition law, and Attorney General Griggs' "outrageous" interpretation of the law abolishing the army canteen.

One of the recommendations was that the assembly should appeal to President McKinley to enforce the anti-canteen law by virtue of his position as commander-in-chief, regardless of the attorney general's opinion, at least until the supreme court has passed on the matter. An attempt was made to strike out the last clause but it was voted down.

The bills and overtures committee worked all the morning on the McGiffert case and finally consolidated three reports into one. The report was scheduled for reading this afternoon. If too much time is not taken up with this case the assembly will be able to adjourn tomorrow afternoon.

The McGiffert committee brought in two reports. The majority refers the matter to the presbytery of New York; the minority recommends the New York presbytery to appoint a committee to confer with McGiffert and if he refuses to modify his views to proceed against him.

CONGREGATIONAL MEETING.

Hartford, Conn., May 25.—The business meeting of the Congregational Home Missionary society was held this morning. The report of the treasurer, William B. Howland, of New York, showed that the debt of the society would have been $60,000 less than the $133,000 debt reported but for the postponement of the payment of the legacies which will come into the treasury in the near future. The expenditures of the society for missionary work and operating expenses were less by $60,000 than they were in the preceding year and with an income from legacies equal to that of the preceding year the debt would have shown a reduction of $55,000 instead of an increase.

Rev. L. L. Taylor, D. D., of Cleveland, Ohio, reported for the executive committee. The report recommended the entrance of the society upon missionary work in Cuba, and the recommendation was adopted without debate.

Mr. Gen. O. O. Howard was re-elected president. The vice-presidents of the previous year were re-elected. Rev. William H. Holman, of Southport, Conn., was elected recording secretary, and George S. Edgell auditor.

TROUBLE OVER PROHIBITION.

Denver, Col., May 25.—Considerable dissatisfaction has developed among the members of the Cumberland Presbyterian assembly over the temperance resolutions adopted on Tuesday which practically pledged the votes of members of the church to the prohibition party. A motion made today to reconsider the vote by which the resolutions were adopted was ruled out of order. It is likely, however, the question will come up again. A resolution was adopted endorsing Sabbath observance, deploring the degeneracy of the age in this respect, censuring those commissionaires of the assembly who took the excursion around the loop last Sunday, and ordering the clerk to secure the names of such delegates and inform their presbyteries of their delinquency.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—Rev. W. J. Robinson, D. D., of Allegheny, Pa., was unanimously elected moderator of the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church at today's session. There were only two candidates for the honor. Rev. Dr. Robinson's opponent was the Rev. W. C. Williamson, of Keokuk, Iowa.

BAPTIST SOCIETY.

San Francisco, Cal., May 25.—The second session of the American Baptist Educational society was occupied by a conference and free discussion on the subject "Is the Establishment of a Baptist Theological School on the Pacific Coast Desirable and Feasible?" The discussion was led by Rev. Robert Whitaker, California; Rev. Alex. Blackburn, D. D., of Oregon; Rev. C. M. Hill of California, and Rev. A. B. Brown, of California. "The Aims and Methods of Theological Education" was presented by Rev. W. S. Hobart, D. D., of Yonkers, N. Y.

INTERNATIONAL Y. M. C. A.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 25.—The city is well filled with delegates to the International conference of the Young Men's Christian association, which opened this afternoon. A special reception will be given tonight at the Furniture exposition building in honor of the naval heroes present, Admiral Philip, Rear Admiral Higginson and Lieutenant Commander Wadeham. Special interest is shown in the display of work of the association of the army and navy.

MISSIONARY UNION MEETING.

The opening session of the fifth annual meeting of the Missionary Union convened at 2:30 this afternoon with a very fair attendance, the different churches of the union being well represented. The meeting this evening promises to be most satisfactory and several interesting addresses will be made. Tonight's program follows.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL.

Hermann Gable, of the dairy firm of Gable & Sons, who was severely injured in a runaway accident one day last week, is lying very low at his home, three miles south of the city. He is unconscious the greater portion of the time.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Charles M. Romy and Bertha Romy. Henry Atba and Sarah Mathes. Salem Sisco and Tedda Asad. The last license is being held by Clerk Belot until the prospective groom can raise the necessary $2 to pay for it.

Pardonable Ignorance.

From the Kansas City Journal: At Fort Scott the other day the Presbyterians and the Methodists had an old-fashioned spelling match, with thirty-two on each side. One by one the contestants were spelled down until only two Presbyterians and one Methodist remained. Then the master gave out the word "pisan," and all three missed it, leaving a victory for neither side. Pisan is defined in the dictionary as a mucilaginous decoction used as a drink, and it is not to be expected that Presbyterians and Methodists would know much about drinks.

For those who have not the time, the inclination, or the "knack" essential to the production of "Good Copy" for magazine or trade-paper space--circulars, booklets, show cards--I offer the facilities of the best equipment in America.

Good copy is the vital spark of advertising--without it the best of space is wasted. Whether you advertise much or little, the copy is the thing that decides the question of profit or loss.

I prepare and place the advertising of some of the shrewdest and most successful of American advertisers.

I put selling force into the literature of manufacturers and jobbers who do not regard themselves as advertisers, but who nevertheless wish to have their printed matter productive of real results.

I wish to hear from those who contemplate new advertising or who are not satisfied with the results of what they are already doing, and to these I will be pleased to send literature of my own, fully explaining the services I offer.

INDUCTED INTO PASTORATE.

REV. DAVID L. WILLIAMS IS RECEIVED.

Interesting Recognition Service at the South Congregational Church Last Night.

The South Congregational church was crowded last evening, the members of Plymouth church uniting in a public service inducting the Rev. David T. Williams into the work of his new pastorate. The Rev. Williams comes from Cambria, N. Y., where he was settled for ten years and where he was recognized not only as an able and scholarly preacher but as a leader in every good cause in the community. The address of the Rev. J. S. Ainslie, under whose leadership the South church was organized five years ago, outlined the qualifications of the true minister for today and it illustrated each point effectively. The Rev. Henry Lewellen offered prayer and spoke briefly upon the value of co-operation by the churches in Christian work. The Rev. T. J. Johnson, pastor of the Simpson M. E. church, brought greetings from the other churches of the south side and gave an address upon "The Part of the People in a Successful Pastorate." It was a humorous and earnest message that touched all hearts. The closing words were by the new pastor, who in his pleasing style expressed gratitude for the cordial welcome extended to himself and family by the members of the South church, by the people in the community and by the pastors and people of other churches who were present. The South church people are happy and united in their new pastor; the Sunday audiences are growing, and all feel that there is a great work to be done and a bright future for the church. There was special music by Mrs. Miles and Mr. Willson, a solo by Miss Williams, a daughter of the pastor, and a duet by Miss Warrick and Mrs. Miles. At the close of the exercises a social hour was enjoyed, the ladies of the church serving light refreshments.

NORTHERN INDIANA NOTES.

No more cadet teachers will be hired by the Goshen school board. The system has said to have resulted disastrously for the schools. Thomas Seymour, of Wabash, who underwent amputation of his leg on account of tuberculosis of the knee joint, failed to rally and is dead. Judge J. T. Cox, of the Miami circuit court, has been presented with a handsome gavel made of rosewood secured by a soldier at Matanzas. Lieut. Edgar Radenour, a member of the Sixteenth infantry, and a resident of Peru, is on his way to San Francisco, Cal., where he will embark for the Philippines the first of next month. The Morning News, at Peru, owned by J. E. Sutton, of Logansport, and managed by J. E. Raey, formerly of Laporte, came out Tuesday as a republican paper. It is now the only republican daily in the city. The Northern Indiana Editorial association will hold its annual meeting in Muncie June 15 and 16. The place of meeting is a little outside of the territory covered by the association, but it was the wish of the members to visit the city of Muncie and see how things were going with the newspaper brethren there. The attendance promises to be very large. Mrs. Samuel Cox and Mrs. Mary Firestone, the Ligonier women charged with shop-lifting in Goshen several weeks ago, pleaded guilty in the circuit court at Goshen. They were sentenced to state's prison from one to three years and a fine of $22. The sentence was suspended during good behavior. The criminal case against Samuel Cox under the same charge was dismissed.

BIG OIL DEAL.

The Hartford City Times of Tuesday's date says: "One of the largest oil deals that has been recently consummated in this section of the field was made yesterday. A. B. Trentman, of Fort Wayne, and part owner of the Utility Paper mill, of this city, purchased the holdings of W. H. Cox and L. C. Aylsworth, or two-thirds of the stock of the Utility Oil company. The property includes six or seven wells and the leases on the Charles and Will Ford farms, in Wells county, just across the Blackford county line. The consideration is said to have been $25,000."

TINY TREES FROM JAPAN

Fairy Woodland In the American Art Galleries.

WONDERFUL SHOW AT NEW YORK.

Forest Giants Brought Down to Lilliputian Dimensions--Forms That Take Any Shape You Will--Two Maples in a Little Stone Relic of the Twelfth Century.

To visit the American Art galleries, in New York, where the exhibition of Japanese floral and arboreal plants was on view the other day, was to wander in a fairy woodland. Here were the monarchs of the forest dwarfed to the measure of the conservatory, towering pines that one could set in the corner of a drawing room and maples that could be carried away in one's pocket. These pygmy trees are the product of years, and in some cases of centuries, of training by the most skillful and patient arboriculturists in the world. Walking between rows of them, perfect in every branch, twig and leaf, one feels like a giant and half expects that a closer examination will reveal tiny folk taking their ease in the shade. The largest tree of the collection is only a little more than a man's height.

The specimens which first attract the attention are the figure ferns. These ferns can be made to grow in any shape. The Japanese wind the roots around forms of moss and so obtain the desired results. One pair of ferns represented bicyclists, a man and a woman, the machines being perfect, even to the pedals, and the roots sprouting here and there into sprays of fernery. Another figure was that of a very well modeled elephant, two feet high. A pair of fern dragon guardians kept ward, one on each side of the entrance to the upper gallery. As examples of ingenuity these figures are interesting, but they have not the value of the older trees.

A beautiful and valuable tree is a maple chisho, the tallest exhibit in the collection, being about 17 feet high. It is perfect in shape, and its leaves, of a delicate pinkish hue, show all the sharp cut beauties of outline characteristic of our own maple. It comes from a private collection in Niigata and is about 85 years old. Near the entrance stands a fine sage palm, with a solid trunk about three and a half feet high and one foot in diameter, crowned with 32 leaves, spraying out from the top, each leaf the exact shape of the magnified antennae of the large common cecropia moth. A fine spreading juniper is shown, its width being 4 1/2 feet and its height only 2 feet.

A 70-year-old pigmy is a Bon Kei representing a small island in the lake of Biwa. It consists in a stone on which grows a graceful tree, six inches high. Another stone is still more remarkably wooded, as it bears two tiny maples, which apparently derive their sustenance from the water in which the stone rests. The whole thing could be put into a coat pocket. There is an exquisite Golden Knapu Hiba, pyramidal in shape, which was in a Tokyo family for more than a century. Several little gardens are shown with trees, plants, rustic bridges, chairs and tea tables, all in a space of a square yard.

The most impressive tree in the collection is the large Chabo-Hiba, which stands in the center of the front room. It is something like a pine, but more spreading and about six feet high. It dates from the twelfth century, when, it is supposed, it was cultivated by the Buddhist priests, who were great artists in gardening. Before the Shogun's downfall, 33 years ago, it was kept in the gardens of the temple in Tokyo. Thereafter it passed into the possession of the official gardener, Mr. Tagaki. It is valued at $1,000, and the purchaser of it may have the services of a Japanese gardener free for one year to care for it.

There is a Japanese tea arbor in the little forest, in which a tiny Japanese maiden serves tea to the visitors. This arbor with the trees and plants are to be sold at auction--New York Sun.

SAT DOWN ON FRESH PAINT.

How a Kansas City Crowd Admired Its Attendance at a Circus. Ten thousand people of Kansas City and suburbs unwillingly became walking advertisements for a circus that exhibited at that city the other day, and they paid for the privilege too. It was through the master painter's cleverness that this gratis advertising was secured. He painted every seat in the main tent a bright shining yellow and neglected to use any dryer. Every man, woman and child who attended left the place striped like a zebra or colored like a bon constrictor.--Special to Chicago Record.

Only the Land Remains.

The farm on which Abraham Lincoln was born, which lies two miles south of Hodgenville, Ky., has been sold to David Greer of New York. It is now very probable, a telegram informs us, that the farm will be converted into a park. The old Lincoln farm should be preserved as a park for many reasons, one of the principal of which is that it is the only thing related to the place of the great American's birth that has not been carted around the country for exhibition. The cabin Abraham Lincoln was born in, the old oaken bucket that hung in the well, and every fence rail that was on the place when the great American died, disappeared long ago. But neither the showman nor the relic hunter could remove the farm.--Chicago Inter Ocean.

One Thing Certain.

The automobile will never take the place of the circus horse.--Kansas City Star.

WATSON AS A MIDSHIPMAN.

Admiral's Brave Action in Saving Farragut's Flagship. Rear Admiral Watson, who has been sent to Manila to succeed Admiral Dewey, was a passed midshipman on the Hartford in April, 1882, when Admiral Farragut ran by Forts Jackson and St. Philip, below New Orleans. A correspondent of the New York Sun thus describes Admiral Watson's brave conduct on that occasion: As the Hartford passed Fort St. Philip a shower of grape from one of the big guns of the foremost into matchwood and seriously disabled the sail power of the ship. It was necessary to take in some sails and set others, but the blocks had jammed and the Hartford was in danger of swinging about and running aground. The fire of grape aloft was so hot that the command "Go aloft and clear blocks and tackle on main yard!" was not obeyed with that promptness that follows an order given by the commander of a man-of-war. But the hesitation was momentary.

"Come on, you fellows!" yelled a young voice, and up the ratlines to the disabled rigging went a midshipman, followed by the watch. Running out lightly to the end of the yard and standing 60 feet from the deck, with the grape clipping ropes and tearing great slivers of wood from mast and spar, young Watson gave the necessary orders as calmly as if he was at a practice drill. When everything was taut and in working order, following the "jacks" down, Watson saluted the admiral and reported, "All clear, sir!" Grim old Farragut simply seized the boy in his arms, and how the crew cheered!

"Had we ever got aground there the Confederate guns would have destroyed us in five minutes," said Fleet Captain Percival Drayton of the west gulf squadron as he told the story to Captain (afterward Rear Admiral) Bryson. "Young Watson's ready appreciation of the danger and prompt action saved the Hartford, in my opinion, and Farragut thought so too."

ALL TOLD HIM "HOWDY."

Caged Monkeys Welcome a Soldier's Pet Simian.

There was an amusing (and interesting) episode at the monkey cage in Ringling Bros' circus at St. Louis the other evening. A returned volunteer of the Sixth Missouri entered the menagerie with a small monkey perched on his shoulder. He was escorted to the monkey cage by Alf Ringling and a reporter. The caged monkeys "piped off" the stranger as soon as he appeared in sight. There was a great chattering, and all the monkeys, big and little, lined up in front of the cage, squatted on their haunches and eyed the stranger eagerly.

At Mr. Ringling's suggestion the soldier took his pet inside the ropes. The monkey jumped to the bars and clung. All the caged monkeys crowded about him, and figuratively and literally proceeded to give him the "glad hand." They would reach out their hands and pick at him on the head, body, anywhere they could reach, but evidently in a kindly spirit.

There was not the slightest show of anger or resentment and the new arrival, frightened a bit at first, plucked up courage and began climbing up the bars of the cage. Those inside climbed up with him, and he seemed to enjoy the companionship of his new friends that he was inclined to prolong his stay, and it was only after his master repeatedly and forcibly tugged at his chain that he was induced to leave. He cast longing looks behind as his master walked away, and all the other monkeys lined up and watched him till he was lost in the crowd.--St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

An Arctic Sea Gull in Kansas.

A few days ago a sea gull was shot by a hunter near Fiat, Kan. Sea gulls are rare birds in this section--in fact, so rare that the hunter who brought it down didn't know what it was that he had shot. So he brought it to Howard, Kan., and showed it to several who pronounced it a sea gull of a rare species, now almost extinct--the rose or roseate Arctic gull. It attracted much attention by its beauty, its downy breast being of a rare, delicate pink and its wings of a glossy black.--Howard (Kan.) Citizen.

Memorial Day, 1899.

"Comrades, fall in!" The sunny month of May brings us once more fond memories of the past. Of myriads mustering for the march and fray. Of beat of drum and thrilling bugle blast. The weary march, the drooping fusillade. The distant cheer and scurrying hoof and foot. The clasp of the cannonade. Shrill yell and hoarse hurrah where thousands meet. In line of battle and the sadder scenes, Death's harvest over, where at rest for aye Heroes lie lifeless and the sunlight gleams on pallid faces 'neath the leafy spray.

We lay our tribute on the graves of those Who have before us passed the portals of life. Of that great gate which opens to brave souls That lead us on where peace enters in To every heart that works well done. The ceaseless strife of battling right and wrong. The vanquish of all things 'neath the sun And longing for life's life away from them. To them be peace, but as we march today We give God thanks that we have lived to see Northron and southern gathering to the fray Under one flag, victors by land and sea.

Gather then, proudly Who could hope again To hear the brazen bugles shrilly blow. To see the warships cleave the groaning main. The stanch battalions bravely come and go. To hear the world applaud, surprised, The southern dash and northern strength allied. Victories which shame all records of the past. And charity which even our foes supplied. Life has been long, and yet its proudest day Comes with its lengthening shadows, for we see That those we honor threw not life away. But gave us union, honor, liberty --Hall Charlton in National Magazine.

SLOANE IN ENGLAND

Little Jockey
Most Popular
American Abroad

Em bassador Chas. is already very popular in England, but his popularity can in no way be compared to that enjoyed by that other distinguished American, Mr. "Tod" Sloane, jockey. All of England, as well as the people in the most remote parts of Great Britain, have heard of this midget pigskin knight, and his praises are sung from Land's End to Dunnet Head.

Sloane was recently presented to the Prince of Wales, and since then every sporting peer in the realm has thrown open his doors to him. But the dandified little chap who began as stable boy on a western breeding farm is not letting pleasure interfere with his work. During his riding season he sticks strictly to his training, keeps in trim and attends to business, which is to bring his mount in ahead.

It is an odd day for Sloane when he does not ride at least three winners. This fact the visiting Americans soon appreciated. They profited by their knowledge by plunging on Sloane's mounts and won large sums. At last the English bookmakers, in order to avoid bankruptcy, retaliated by marking up the odds on horses ridden by Sloane, and now an American who wins $1 puts up sometimes twice as much to get it.

As a final proof of greatness Sloane has been caricatured by S. H. Sims, the great London cartoonist. The picture shows him riding just back of the horse's ears, an allusion to "Tod's" habit of "riding forward."

A QUEER CLUB.

All the Members
Pledged to Marry Widows.

In spite of the historic warning of the elder Mr. Weller a number of young men in Peoria, Ill., have banded themselves together with the deliberate intention of getting themselves captured by widows. Their organization, for it has assumed definite shape, is known as the "Marry a Widow club." There are 25 members in the club, all of them prosperous business men. George Richardson is president, C. B. L. Jacobs vice president and Thorwald Burn secretary.

Each of these 25 members is pledged to marry a widow. There are no limitations whatever except the widowhood. There was a man in Peoria a few weeks ago who married a widow. He belonged to a military society. Then PRESIDENT GEORGE RICHARDSON, somebody said that everybody that had been married out of that club had taken unto himself a spouse to whom the marriage business was an "avid sang." Thirty-five members of the society remained. They got together, organized a new club—the Oak Street—with the constitution and bylaws so framed as to bind the members under a possibly disagreeable penalty to marrying widows.

Of course the obligation does not compel a man to marry at all. He can stay single as long as he thinks it is to his best interests to do so, but once he makes up his mind to be like other human beings he's got to patch up the matter with a woman who has had experience.

Should a member break his pledge the club makes him pay a fine and reserves the privilege of attending the wedding in a body or of interfering at the altar of doing something else which the delinquent would naturally abhor.

Mother Of Christian Science.

If the Rev. Mary Baker Eddy was not the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, she is certainly today the head and front of that movement, which is just now being brought into unusual prominence by the legal attacks which are being made on it in New York. Some Christian Scientists claim that Phineas Parkhurst Quimby was the real founder of the sect. He lived in New Hampshire and died there in 1866. His friends allege that it was he who taught Mrs. Eddy the principles she now preaches and that he restored her to health.

But the great majority of Christian Scientists look upon Mrs. Eddy as the mother of their faith. She first began practicing the art of healing in Lynn, Mass., soon after the date of Mr. Quimby's death. In 1870 she published her first pamphlet, entitled "The Science of Man," which was afterward incorporated in "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures."

In her book "Retrospection and Inspiration" Mrs. Eddy says, "During 20 years prior to my discovery I had been trying to trace all physical effects to a mental cause, and in the latter part of 1866 I gained the scientific certainty that all causation was mind and every effect a mental phenomenon."

Her first complete statement of Christian Science was published in 1875 and has since been followed by many other works.

In 1881 Mrs. Eddy moved from Lynn to Boston, and there she organized a Christian Science church, a metaphysical college and also began the publication of The Christian Science Journal. Soon after the church was opened, it is said, she was privately ordained to the ministry by her disciples, and whenever she preached, which was only three or four times a year, large crowds came to hear her. In 1889 she moved to Concord, N. H., and from there she still communicates regularly with her host of followers.

The mother church of Boston is said to have a roll of 12,000 members from all over the country, and its affairs are lodged in the hands of a council of forty, which in turn is controlled by a supreme council of seven. A new church was built in Boston in 1895, and when it was opened a new commandment was issued to the effect that the Bible and "Science and Health" should be its only pastors and that there should be no original discourses. It was explained that instead of discourses there would be readings by a man and woman alternately from the Bible and "Science and Health."

There are today, it is estimated, nearly 700,000 persons who believe in the doctrines of Christian Science as expounded by Mrs. Eddy. Most of these are Americans, but a good majority of them are Europeans. It is also claimed that there are thousands of persons, both in this country and in Europe, who believe that her doctrines are true, but who have not yet come forward publicly as her disciples. Among these persons are many of great wealth and refinement, and it is to their financial support and encouragement that the present prominence of the movement is largely said to be due.

Further proof of its success is found in the fact that over 150,000 copies of "Science and Health" have been sold and that there are over 300 churches, most of them beautiful and artistic edifices, in which Christian Scientists regularly meet to worship.

According to Mrs. Eddy, the cardinal doctrine of Christian Science is that the soul, through the power of good, triumphs over sickness and death and performs miracles of healing, such as are related in the Bible. In other words, she and her disciples claim that Christian Science is the up to date and true form of the old Christianity and is wholly in accordance with the teachings of the Bible.

There are no ordained pastors in any of the churches established by Christian Scientists. Instead there are two books—the Bible and "Science and Health," which is regarded by Christian Scientists as the one inspired book of the nineteenth century and of almost if not of quite as much authority as the Bible itself.

That this extraordinary movement will continue to prosper in spite of all legal or other obstacles which may be placed in its way is the general opinion of Christian Scientists, and the ground for this belief is their conviction that the movement is inspired and consequently is beyond the power of all human adversaries.

ANETTE CRAWFORD.

HOT SPRINGS MASSAGE.

How the President Was Treated at the Virginia Resort.

COURSE IN MEDICO GYMNASIACS.

Nerve Compression, Poundings, Slappings and Rubbings Have Put Executive in Good Health—Spout Bath Hardest Ordeal, as Big Stream of Hot Water Was Trained on Him.

President McKinley and party, including Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, Comptroller and Mrs. Dawes and Adjutant General Corbin, who have been staying in Hot Springs, Va., recently, returned to Washington the other night.

The marked improvement in the president's condition, due to daily massage treatment and the four or five medicated baths he has taken, is apparent to all. Carl Hillman, a Swedish masseur, called daily before breakfast at the McKinley apartments and put the executive through a course of medico gymnastics.

Here is the massage treatment in detail: The masseur begins at the tips of the patient's toes, pressing the thumbs hard over the blood veins and muscles, producing a moderate friction. He thus follows the outer nerves up the legs and spine, clear to the back of the patient's head. This performance the masseur repeats two or three times. Then the operator returns to the toes and begins working slowly up the body, gently slapping the flesh with his open hands. Every square inch of the patient is covered in this way. If the patient's face be bloated, or if there be an undue clump of fat on the arms or shoulders, the masseur throws more pressure on the unnatural spots and continues the friction for a longer period.

Once more the masseur starts in at the toes, this time putting the patient through a treatment known as "nerve compression." Taking a firm grip on the flesh, he rolls and twists it as a baker kneads dough. Imagine your flesh being pinched and squeezed and you have an accurate conception of the masseur's nerve compression. Afterward the masseur strikes out for the patient's muscles and goes through a performance known as "muscle rolling." In doing this he merely rolls the muscles over the bone. This is calculated to harden and ease them. But this is not all. The masseur begins at the beginning again and with the sharp side of his hands taps the flesh lightly. This process is known as "hacking" and tends to drive any soreness from the muscles.

Next the masseur pulls the patient's leg—not in the slangy sense, but literally and actually. While the patient holds fast to an iron bar at the head of the couch, the masseur grabs the legs, twists, rolls and pulls them. The arms, likewise, are rolled and twisted, and while the masseur holds them fast at the wrist the patient is told to exert his strength by endeavoring to loosen them. An alcohol rubbing follows and after a few moments' quiet the patient is told to take his clothes and dress.

This was the treatment President McKinley underwent daily before breakfast. Is it small wonder, therefore, that he returned to Washington feeling like the proverbial 2-year-old?

The "tub" bath, which the president took twice at Hot Springs, is easy compared to the massage. An ordinary porcelain tub is filled with natural hot water from the sulphur springs, a few rods away. The normal temperature of this water is 109, but in passing through the pipe five degrees of heat are lost, so the temperature when it reaches the tub is but 104. A constant stream flowed through the tub. Fifteen minutes were spent in this water. The patient was then taken out, a hot sheet thrown about him, and he was asked to stretch out on a couch. A half dozen heavy woolen blankets were thrown over his body, a cold towel was placed over the forehead, and after ten minutes' sweat, the attendant came in, removed the blankets, dried the bather and then rubbed him down with alcohol. A brief wait in the cooling room and the bath was over.

There was another bath President McKinley took at Hot Springs, i. e., the "spout." First he entered the hot water tub, remained there two or three minutes, then came out and took up a position in the middle of the tiled room. Two circular iron bars raised to a height of three or four feet were brought in, the bather holding fast to them to steady himself, and a stream of water more than an inch in thickness, 104 degrees in temperature, was turned on from a spout near the ceiling. With a 20 pound pressure forcing it along, it splashed out seven or eight feet and struck the bather. A firm grasp on the iron bars is all that keeps one from being floored when this hot steam hits him. The attendant swears the bather about so that the water may strike the body in different places.

Care is taken to keep this hot steam from playing on the heart. People with organic heart trouble cannot withstand the "spout," and the fact that the president went through this ordeal successfully proves that his heart is in better shape than was generally supposed. Ten minutes under the spout is long enough for any one, but the president raised the limit a day or two ago and remained 12 minutes. The spout bather is put in the "pack" or "sweat" bath following his exit from the spout.

"Spout" baths are given principally to rheumatics, but the president's object in taking them was to harden his muscles and to develop the sore spots in his anatomy. If there are any sore spots on one the spout will soon find them.—Special to New York World.

Ham balls for breakfast are made as follows. Take half an ounce of bread-crumbs and mix with three-quarters of a pound of lean ham chopped fine. Beat two eggs, add to the ham and form into balls with the help of a little flour. Fry in deep fat and dry on paper.

Making Paper Flowers

Of all tissue-paper flowers chrysanthemums are the most effective for decoration, and when natural flowers are scarce these take their places most acceptably. Large masses of them put in a handsome vase make a beautiful spot of color. There are so many colors and shades of color among them, as well as sizes.

They are very easy to make from directions, but to achieve really artistic success they should be copied after natural models, since there are so many varieties of this royal flower.

There are ragged ones, large and spreading, small ones scarcely larger than a nickel. Some are outcurved and some incurved, so that one need not fail of finding variety.

The colors range from white to dark bronze brown, with all shades of yellow, pink and purple. The calyx is almost exactly like that of the daisy.

The buds are made by having a flattened bunch of wax, slightly rounded at the top. Over this is pasted around and around a strip of green paper of which one is slashed, so as to give it that overlapped appearance. The center is pinched together. The leaves can be purchased, all cut and pressed into shape, by the dozen, in different sizes. These are of a thick waxy variety of paper and the best, though the artist may cut hers herself, by following the model herewith, and being careful to crease them where marked.

To make chrysanthemums, cut four sets of plates, for petals of four sizes, with six each for the large in or out curved varieties, and four each for the more open and straggly kinds. The model will be found on diagram 1, Fig. 1. They may be six inches in diameter, or two, or even less, according to the kind.

The incurved ones are to be creased and each petal slightly curled at the same time, and the smallest sizes slipped over the stem and up to the calyx and turned over that, as is done in making roses. The pressure must not be great enough, however, to crush out the creases.

When all the petals are on, a few drops of mucilage may be dropped along in among them to hold them strongly, and then a little green wax is brought up against the outside row of petals, and this covered with slashed green paper makes it look like the natural flower. The petals are opened with the hat-philike roses.

The stems to chrysanthemums are quite stiff and rather rigid. Where they do branch the junction is rather rough. The leaves almost always curl backward. Large and small ones grow close together. It is the very irregularity of leaves, flowers and branches that makes these so valuable as decorative plants.

When the bunch is ready to be mounted, the leaves are fastened to the stems by gluing the ends around them. On the diagram the mark on the leaves shows where they are to be creased. A circle like No. 3 may finish the flower as its base and also make a bud instead of the long strips.

All flowers can be copied by following nature both in cutting the petals and in making them up.

Lamp shades are made of crape paper and decorated with rich ribbon tied around the upper part, and often a spray of some kind loosely fastened to one side. Small candle shades for dinner table decoration are also made of tissue paper and decorated as one's taste may dictate.

The crape paper may be purchased ready crimped; but, as it is not always at hand, it is well to know how to make it. For a banquet lamp made over a wire frame it requires six sheets of soft tissue paper 18 inches wide. Paste these together to make one piece 6 yards long and 18 inches wide. Lap the edges flat and paste them and leave them to dry. When it is perfectly dry, gather it into the hands little by little until you grasp the whole six yards. Then begin and gently rub it downward, slightly twisting it at the same time until it is like a club and reduced to its smallest possible diameter.

Then hold it up to the frame and work it around the top, spreading the bottom a little, but keeping the top close. Let the paper extend about two and a half inches above the top of the shade frame, or globe, if it is applied to a globe. When it fits around, hold it with both hands while some one draws a wire around it twice and fastens it.

The ribbon is now to be tied around it outside the wire, and the bow should be rich and ample and also graceful. When the lilies are tied, take hold of the upstanding part of the paper and pull it gently to open it out to form a full rupee, which, however, is to stand up. Three inches of the crape paper at the lower edge is also to be pulled smooth in the same way, which leaves it in a beautiful fluted frill.

Shades to fit down over globes may be formed of net drawn over wires twisted and fastened to fit the shape. Some are made of cardboard sewed together. The net is preferable. The paper is craped and tacked top and bottom.

FOR DAISIES, SWEET PEAS AND CARNATIONS.

tom with needle and thread. A wreath at the top and a fringe at the bottom are to be made of daisies, violets or some other flower with a flexible stem, or a moss border can be made of finely slashed and crimped paper with a pretty spray of flowers at one side.

Batterfly lamp screens are made of tissue paper craped over cardboard. Their bodies are made of cotton. Their feelers of fine wire wound with paper and tipped.

Fans may be covered with crape paper, bordered with violets or some other flower or bordered with a moss and with a rose spray. A bow of ribbon on the handle makes a finish.

There really is no limit to the dainty and pretty things one can make of tissue papers. As soon as you have learned to make one thing the rest seem to come easy, and one needs no teacher, but patience and a close study of nature.

Magnificent Burial Place Fitted Up by a Wealthy Ohio Man's Heirs.

After a year's investigation in the leading cemeteries of the United States and Europe, W. H. Morgan, Edwin Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ramsey, heirs of the late Thomas R. Morgan, founder of the Morgan Engineering works of Alliance, O., have decided upon plans for a magnificent mausoleum and have awarded the contract for its immediate construction to a leading New York firm of monument designers.

Over 400 tons of granite will be used in its construction and the designers claim it will be the finest private mausoleum in the United States outside of New York. The interior is patterned after the tomb of Napoleon in Paris, while the columns at the entrance are imitation of designs in famous European castles. The massive sides will be catacombed with crypts for 24 bodies.

A new feature is a continuous twilight effect in the interior by a system of prismatic glasses in daytime and by hidden incandescent lights at night.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Distant Grave.

I know that Decoration day will soon be here again.

An ma an me are growin flowers that will be ready then To lay upon my comrades dear whose span of life is done—

The comrades brave who fought an marchod with me in sixty-one. An when th' day arrives again then ma an me will sorrow.

Th' brightest flowers we can get above my comrades dead. An while we decorate th' graves of those who marchod with me.

We'll not forget th' graves of them who marchod with Gen'l Lee.

Near forty years of softenin time have banished every scar. An we who fought each other then again united are.

Th' bloody line dividin us was washed out by th' tears. We've shed above our comrades' graves through all th' weary years.

An we who wore th' Union blue an those who wore th' gray Are marchin side by side again, all for th' flag today.

An ma an me are growin flowers, th' brightest an th' best. To lay above th' narrow beds where soldier heroes rest.

Yes, ma an me are waitin for th' comin of th' day When we can scatter flowers upon th' graves of blue an gray.

An as we go to where they sleep we'll live again th' years. When brother fought his brother an th' land was filled with tears.

But ma an me will not forget our soldier son who died. A fightin for th' flag he loved across th' ocean wide.

We'll decorate th' graves that day amid home's peaceful scenes. But th' grave we'd rather decorate is in th' Philippines.

Men do not like to go to doctors. Nine times out of ten they wait until they are laid flat on their backs before they will consult a physician. There is some reason in this, for when a business man feels out of sorts and goes to a physician, he is often given a bill for $5.00 or more. For a time, unfit for business and really sick. There is a way of avoiding both extremes—that of neglecting the health and that of taking violent drugs that rack the entire system. It is always to keep the system in good health. It is the great appetite sharpener, blood-maker and flesh-builder. It fills the arteries with the rich, red, tissue-building blood of health. It does not make flabby fat like cod liver oil, but the solid, muscular and nerve tissues of health. It does not make corruptible people more corrupt.

"I want to inform you of a cure effected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I am now 46 years old. I had grip, ending with bronchitis and consumption. In the spring of 1896 my condition became very serious. I had consumption and I coughed day and night; could not lie down at all. My family doctor said I could not get well. The neighbors came in to see me die, and a lady friend recommended Dr. Pierce's medicine. So strongly that we immediately sent out and bought six bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription'. After using these medicines, found I was receiving benefit and continued. I weighed 120 when I commenced taking medicine, now weigh 120. I sleep well, have a splendid appetite, feel well, and believe I am entirely cured. I am thankful to God and to Dr. Pierce for those wonderful medicines. I want to add that I am a wonder to my neighbors and friends."

SHOP AND RAIL.

IMPORTANT RAILWAY MEETING THIS EVENING.

TO BE HELD AT THE RANDALL.

BUSINESS MEN MOVING IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

WANT LINE TO BUTLER, IND.

TO CONNECT BRANCHES OF THE WABASH.

The ruling in the supreme court in the case which shall decide the control of the Eel River railroad, a question of great importance to Fort Wayne, is now due and is being anxiously looked for. Oral argument was heard by Judge Baker May 12th last, but that gentleman has not yet rendered a decision. It is believed here that the plaintiffs will be awarded a verdict, and acting under this belief a number of business men of this city are interesting themselves in a proposition to build a line from New Haven to Butler, which would take the place of the Eel River road in connecting the Detroit-Buffalo and the St. Louis branches of the Wabash system. If such a road is built and operated by the Wabash all the through trains, both passenger and freight, on that line will pass through this city. They are nearly all being sent over the Eel River line now and the Toledo branch of the system has become only an insignificant local line. Tonight the business men of Fort Wayne will meet in the parlors of the Randall hotel to discuss the matter and formulate a plan of going before the management of the Wabash Railroad company, with the end in view of getting the aforesaid New Haven-Butler line built. It is believed that if this road is built, Fort Wayne will soon become a division terminal. Among those interested in the movement are C. S. Bash, W. H. Dreier, Louis Fox, B. S. O'Connor, J. F. W. Meyer, J. W. Bell, J. C. Peters, H. C. Paul, P. A. Randall, George W. Pixley, W. E. Mossman, C. A. Wilding, J. H. Bass, S. M. Foster and J. W. White.

COMING RAILWAY MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of the master mechanics and master car builders will be held at Old Point Comfort, commencing June 19th. As usual, Fort Wayne will have one or more representatives at the meeting. The western men have arranged to go in a body, meeting at Chicago on the 12th and traveling by special train over the Big Four and the Chesapeake and Ohio roads. Other railway conventions and meetings will be held as follows:

June 13—National Association of Local Freight Agents, at Norfolk, Va.

June 19—National Association of Car Service Managers, at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

June 20—Train Dispatchers' Association of America, at Milwaukee, Wis.

June 20—Train Dispatchers' Association of Car Accountants, at Saratoga, N. Y.

June 28—Association of American Railway Accounting Clerks, at Montreal, Can.

July 19—American Association of General Baggage Agents, at Charlevoix, Mich.

August 10—National convention of Railroad Commissioners, at Denver, Col.

September 12—Roadmasters' Association of America, at Detroit, Mich.

October 11—American Railway Association, at New York city.

October 17—American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents, at Boston, Mass.

October 17—Association of Railway Superintendents of Bridges and Buildings, at Detroit, Mich.

A NEW YORK BRANCH.

It is stated that the Wayne Knitting mills contemplate the erection of an extensive branch establishment and warehouse in New York city in the near future. This will give the company a repository for stock to supply the heavy eastern demand, as well as a point for shipments abroad. T. F. Thieme, who has just returned from an eastern trip in the interest of the company, was in consultation with other directors yesterday at the office of Henry C. Paul, the president.

WILL USE ILLINOIS COAL.

The Pennsylvania company is making some experiments with coal from the Illinois mines with a view of adopting that fuel on the western branches of the system if it should be found satisfactory. The coal now used by the company comes from the Ohio and Pennsylvania mines. By getting it in Indiana and Illinois, a big saving can be effected. All the coal used for the Wabash road is taken from mines near that line of railway in eastern and southern Illinois, and it is considered first-class engine fuel.

WINONA ASSEMBLY.

Programs for the summer meeting at Winona are being distributed.

They indicate one of the best gatherings that resort ever had, as the list of speakers contains some of the best known men of the country. The assembly opens July 3. The Pennsylvania company may put its Winona-Warsaw train in service about June 12 for the accommodation of the cottagers, who will be quite numerous at Winona at that time.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

George Henschen has taken a position in the Bass boiler shop.

R. A. Alexander has gone to Carthage, Mo., to test car axles for the Wabash company.

After an illness of three weeks, Peter Lauer has resumed his place in the Wabash shops.

E. K. Woodward, civil engineer of the Wabash, was in the city yesterday. He resides in Peru.

W. H. Tigar is today making a trip over the Chicago end of the Pittsburgh road in his official capacity.

Western roads have agreed to advance charity rates westbound from the Missouri river to California common points to $30.

P. J. Singleton, machinist in the Pittsburgh shops and member of the board of water works, is confined to his home by sickness.

A Hamm returned from Ohio last night and this morning resumed his place in the Pittsburgh machine shop, after an absence of a week.

M. D. Woodford, president of the Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling, has placed an order with the Pressed Steel company for fifty cars.

Passenger engine 168, which has been running on the eastern division of the Nickel Plate for some time, has gone to the Stony Island shops for repairs.

H. C. Mennewisch, tinner at the east car shops, has returned to his duties out there, after an absence of several days on account of sickness in his family.

L. Smith, the aged sweeper at the Pittsburgh carpenter shops, is confined to his home by sickness. J. Tremple, of the tank shop, is also sick and off duty.

John T. Fratis, machinist in the Wabash shops, will go to Terre Haute tomorrow to visit his family, who still reside there. As soon as the school season closes Mr. Fratis will move his family here.

Engineer M. Murphy, of the Pittsburgh, has recovered from an attack of muscular rheumatism that has disabled him ever since the middle of February last. He reported for duty on the road this morning.

William Stadley has resigned his position in the Wabash shops because the noise is injuring his hearing. He will probably take a position in the Organ factory. Mr. Stadley is a member of the City band.

John H. Lawrence, of the Pittsburgh blacksmith shop, is sick and unable to work. Johnny Hebert, hammer boy in that establishment, has recovered from an illness and resumed work this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Ruch have returned from Toledo, where they spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scheid. Mr. Ruch is employed in the Pittsburgh copper shop. He resumed work this morning.

Louis Stetter, who had a thumb badly injured two weeks ago, resumed his place in the Pittsburgh shops this morning. Henry Zollinger, a carpenter, has also returned to work after a few days' illness.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George McCormick, of 14 Jackson street—a son. There are now eight children in that family—seven boys and one girl—and the eldest is only nine years old. Mr. McCormick is a Nickel Plate conductor.

Clerk H. A. Phillely, of Road Foreman Colmery's office, left this morning for Grand Rapids to attend the Y. M. C. A. convention and during his absence the clerical duties of his position will be performed by Vincent Dawson.

George Dunfee and his crane-man, F. Graybill, who have been handling the steam shovel in the Pittsburgh yards, have completed the work and have been released by the company. Mr. Graybill has returned to his duties as fireman for Engineer John Carroll in testing Wabash engines after they have been repaired, and Mr. Dunfee is visiting relatives in Toledo. He will soon take charge of the Wabash's steam shovel.

Victor Martin, who was injured in the east car shops, is much better than he has been since the accident. He will probably be able to resume work before long.

A syndicate supposed to represent the Baltimore and Ohio has purchased eleven acres of water front at Newport News and will erect a pier. An impression prevails that the Baltimore and Ohio is to have a terminal at that point.

Pittsburg Engineer A. M. Walsh received a telegram calling him to Warsaw this morning. His son is lying very ill there. The Walsh family still make their home in that city, though they are preparing to move to Fort Wayne.

President Truesdale, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, says the report that 600 employees of his road had been discharged was not true. Probably half that number, he says, have been dropped, and not one because of his age.

William Murphy, an engineer on one of the fastest trains run on the eastern division of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago, on Tuesday completed his twentieth year in hauling the fast trains and has never met with the slightest accident.

George Sites, a carpenter, had the flesh stripped from the end of the little finger of his left hand yesterday, while working about the tank of an engine in the Wabash shops. Dr. Porter dressed the wounded hand and the plucky fellow resumed work at once.

Judge Hook has issued an order for the sale of the Leavenworth, Topeka and Southwestern railway. This is the only railroad in Kansas remaining in the hands of a receiver. The order is made in the suit brought by the American Loan and Trust company.

Frank Thomson, president of the Pennsylvania lines, and the officials who accompanied him in their western inspection trip, reached Philadelphia Saturday night and expressed themselves well pleased with the condition of the properties they inspected.

W. D. Hagger, who retires as purchasing agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western on June 1st, has been with that company thirty-four years, and during that long period he was off duty but thirty-four days on account of illness. His retirement was voluntary.

The Wabash shops and yards look as clean "as a pin" and it is the intention of the general foreman to keep them in that condition. Arrangements are being made to paint the window sashes and doors of the buildings and that work will commence in a few days.

STORY OF A SLAVE.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting, and dizzy spells. This miracle-working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by Dreier & Bro., druggists.

COMMITTEE ON GAS.

The council committee appointed to consider the natural gas franchise will hold a meeting this evening in City Clerk Monning's office. This is the committee that held a conference with Messrs. H. C. Paul and C. F. Dieterich several weeks ago. The committee has invited Hon. R. C. Bell, E. S. O'Connor, Charles McCulloch and Henry Colerick to be present at the meeting. Hon. C. F. Muhler was on the list of citizens to have been invited, but when City Clerk Monning went to his office to notify him last night the ex-mayor was lying dead.

WANT NEW BIDS.

The board of public works will take no more chances on alleys and accordingly tonight will pass new resolutions for the paving of the alleys awarded two weeks ago. One alley is between Wayne and Washington streets, from Clinton to Barr, and the other is between Washington and Jefferson, from Lafayette to Clay. At the last letting the board advertised only for bids on brick and as there is some question as to the meaning of the law, they determined to readvertise and name three kinds of material.

THE NEW STREETS.

This evening City Engineer Randall will submit to the board of works plans and specifications for the pavements on Baker street, Fourth street, Madison street and Walton avenue. The resolutions will

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Fullness of Health Makes Sweet Dispositions and Happy Homes.

[EXTRACTS FROM MRS. PINKHAM'S NOTE BOOK.]

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill health, painful menses, pains in the side, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and begin its use. This truly wonderful remedy is the safeguard of women's health.

Mrs. MABEL SMITH, 348 Central Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can hardly find words with which to thank you for what your wonderful remedy has done for me. Without it I would by this time have been dead or worse, insane; for when I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a terrible state. I think it would be impossible for me to tell all I suffered. Every part of my body seemed to pain some way. The pain in my back and head was terrible. I was nervous, had hysterics and fainting spells. My case was one that was given up by two of the best doctors in Brooklyn. I had given up myself; as I had tried so many things, I believed nothing would ever do me any good. But, thanks to your medicine, I am now well and strong; in fact, another person entirely."

If you are puzzled about yourself, write freely and fully to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and secure the advice which she offers free of charge to all women. This is the advice that has brought sunshine into many homes which nervousness and irritability had nearly wrecked.

KAUTZ IS UPHELD.

HIS COURSE HAS RECEIVED APPROVAL.

COMMISSIONERS ARE IN APIA.

AN ARMED TRUCE IS THE SITUATION.

MATAFA TALKS OF AFFAIRS.

FOLLOWERS WILL NOT STAND MALIETO'S RULE.

Apia, Samoa, May 17 (via Auckland, N. Z., May 20).—The Samoan commission (consisting of Bartlett Tripp, former United States minister to Austria-Hungary; Baron Speck Von Sternberg, representing Germany, and C. N. Elliot, G. B., of the British embassy at Washington, representing Great Britain), arrived here on May 18. Its first sitting took place May 19. The commissioners were engaged all that morning in conferring with Chief Justice William L. Chambers. Nothing was disclosed regarding the deliberations, but it is reported that they will uphold the action of Admiral Kautz, the American naval commander.

Matafa sent the commissioners a letter of welcome and expressed the hope that they would satisfactorily end the troubles in Samoa.

It is understood Matafa will obey the unanimous order of the commission, though it is doubtful whether he will order his followers to disarm, unless the Malietos are first disarmed.

The Malietos will probably disperse to their homes if ordered to do so, but they will never recognize Malietoa as king, and, doubtless, there will be further trouble in the future if the kingdom is maintained.

Only one or two cases are known of the wounding of natives by the shell fire of the war ships and, as they have not realized the strength of the Europeans, they may go to greater extremes if war arises again.

The rebels remain outside the lines indicated by the admiral and have strongly fortified a new position, while the loyalists are being drilled and have fortified Malinua. A considerable number of loyalists have been brought by the warships from other islands.

Half the male adults of Samoa are awaiting action upon the part of the commission in order to support Malietoa.

The Germans are preparing compensation claims. It is understood one German firm claims $40,000 and that other German subjects claim $20,000.

The British consul, E. B. S. Maxse, invited them to put in their claims and it is understood the commission will adjudicate them.

Replying to questions submitted to him by a correspondent of The Associated Press, Matafa said it was the head chiefs and not himself who began the war, adding that they did so because they were angered at powers being taken from them by violence and also because they were made angry by the chief justice's unjust decision.

Matafa claims he has upheld the treaty and said his orders throughout were not to fire upon the Europeans and that but for this order the whole party of blue jackets could several times have been shot down by large bodies of natives concealed in the bush.

ARMISTICE NOT DISTURBED.

Berlin, May 25.—A dispatch received here from Apia, Samoa, says the armistice was not disturbed on the arrival there of the Samoan commission and that letters were being exchanged with the view of disbanding the rival forces.

SOLDIERS KILL RIOTERS.

St. Petersburg, May 25.—Further advices from Riga, capital of the Baltic province of Livonia, say that the military in suppressing the rioting between Lettish and Lithuanian workmen at that place on Saturday and Sunday last, killed twelve persons and wounded fifty.

TWO PERSONS CREMATED.

New York, May 25.—Two persons, a man and a woman, perished in a fire that destroyed a lodging house kept by Fay Hilton, in West Forty-seventh street, early today. The man was known by the name of Thompson, and he was supposed to be a fish dealer. The other victim was a negro, whose name is not known, who was killed by leaping from the top story of the building. The fire had gained great headway before it was discovered, and Thompson was suffocated in his room. The loss on the building is $20,000. Mrs. John Roathberg, eighty-five years old, was fatally burned in trying to escape from a burning tenement at Livingston and Pitt streets.

GERMAN MASONS MEET.

Detroit, Mich., May 25.—The Circle of German-American Free Mason lodges, representing 210,000 Masons of German birth or parentage, held its third annual convention today in the Masonic Temple auditorium. The session, which was secret, was devoted largely to reports of officers and committees, and general discussion of the fraternity's interests. This afternoon the delegates and their local hosts boarded the steamer Sappho for a lake and river excursion.

WAR VETERANS ON PARADE.

BIG TIME AT TERRE HAUTE ENCAMPMENT.

Largest Crowd in the City's History—Next Encampment Goes to the State Capital.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 25.—Yesterday afternoon, for the first time since 1891, it was demonstrated that no city outside of Indianapolis wants the State G. A. R. encampment in 1900, so it goes to the capital by unanimous vote. The official meeting of the encampment is the most quiet in the history of the organization.

The convention of the Woman's Relief Corps was a lively session and resulted in the election of Mrs. Maria Slater, of Logansport, for president. She received 201 votes to 150 for Mrs. Zina, of Indianapolis. Mrs. Samantha West Miller, of Indianapolis, would have received a large vote had she not withdrawn her name before the balloting began. Her vote went to Mrs. Slater, who was brought forward when Mrs. Davis, of Michigan City, could not attend.

It was the big day of the encampment, fully 30,000 people being in the city. The parade was a great success. The Grand Army turned out in large numbers. The National Guard showed the discipline of the past year in its splendid marching. The Culver Black Horse Cavalry and the Infantry attracted much attention, as well as the civic and local military organizations. An immense crowd lined sidewalks and streets through which the procession passed. A notable feature was the marching of the Terre Haute school boys. The governor and his staff in full uniforms added brilliancy to the occasion.

MASONIC APPOINTMENTS.

William Geake, grand master of the Masonic grand lodge of Indiana, returned to his home in this city last evening. Just previous to the adjournment of the grand lodge yesterday Mr. Geake announced the following appointments:

Grand Chaplain—James T. O'Neal, of Jeffersonville.

Grand Lecturer—George E. Grimes, of Ladoga.

Marshal—Edward R. Prather, of Anderson.

Senior Grand Deacon—Capt. W. E. English, of Indianapolis.

Junior Grand Deacon—Theodore P. Davis, of Noblesville.

Grand Steward and Tyler—Roger Parry, of Indianapolis.

ENVOYS GO HOME.

THE FILIPINO PEACE AGENTS LEAVE MANILA.

NOTHING WAS ACCOMPLISHED.

WILL SOON RETURN WITH NEW PROPOSITIONS.

STILL TALK OF INDEPENDENCE.

EXPRESS DELIGHT AT THEIR TREATMENT.

Manila, May 25.—5:30 p. m.—The Filipino commissioners left here by special train today. They will be escorted to their lines under a flag of truce. It is expected they will return soon.

President Gonzaga, of the Philippine commission, previous to his departure, said:

"We greatly appreciate the courtesy shown us. We have spent some time with your commissioners, incidentally considering the American constitution. Its principles impress us profoundly.

"The plan of government offered the Philippines seems, in theory, a good colonial system. But why should a nation with your constitution seek to make a colony of a distant people who have been so long fighting against Spain to secure the same rights your constitution gives? You fought the same battle in America when you fought against England."

In the fighting at San Fernando yesterday fifty Filipinos were killed and many were wounded. The Americans had two men killed and twelve wounded.

OTIS REPORTS FIGHTING.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—General Otis has forwarded the following dispatch to the war department:

"Manila, May 25.—Adjutant General, Washington: On 23d instant, Third Infantry returning to Balnang from San Miguel was attacked morning, noon and evening by a large force of enemy, suffering in casualties two men killed and thirteen wounded; enemy repulsed, leaving on the field sixteen killed; large number wounded and prisoners.

"Yesterday enemy appeared in vicinity San Fernando, attacked by Kansas and Montana regiments, which suffered slight loss.

"Enemy driven through rice fields, leaving fifty dead, thirty-eight wounded and twenty-eight prisoners; fifty rifles and other property captured; their retreat through swamp land saved them from destruction; Lawton returning, leaving with McArthur on the front regular troops to replace volunteers. Otis."

OLYMPIA IN DRY DOCK.

New York, May 25.—A dispatch to the Herald from Hong Kong says: The cruiser Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, will go into dry dock Thursday. She will probably leave for home in ten days.

LAWTON AT MALOLO.

New York, May 25.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says: General Lawton is at Malolos with practically his entire command. He is withdrawing to the railroad as the region is difficult to hold during the rainy season. The roads will be impassable in a few days. As supply bases, small garrisons will control the navigation at points on the rivers Rio Grande, Hahaga and San Fernando.

SUDDENLY STRICKEN.

August Gerberding, an aged and much respected citizen residing at 103 Erie street, was seized with a congestive chill this morning while at work, and is in a serious condition. Mr. Gerberding was engaged in planting potatoes and a little girl who was assisting him saw him sink to the ground. She summoned assistance and he was conveyed to his residence, where Dr. Schilling attended him. He is believed to be in no immediate danger, but the outcome cannot be foretold.

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A district convention of the Baptist Young People's union will be in session at the Tabernacle Baptist church, of this city, May 26, 27 and 28. Delegates are expected from Bluffton, Columbia City, South Bend, Muncie, Garrett, Auburn, South Whitley, Huntington, El River and other neighboring towns. The first session will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A good program has been prepared. Everyone interested in young people's work is invited to attend this convention. A special invitation is extended to members of the Y. P. S. C. E. and Epworth league.

DIVORCE CASES.

Ida M. Peterson, through her attorney, John H. Aiken, this afternoon commenced suit for divorce against Charles E. Peterson. The complaint alleges failure to provide, abandonment and cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple were married June 1, 1890, and lived together until June 1, 1898, when plaintiff alleges defendant abandoned her and took with him their child, Evert, aged eight years. She asks for a decree of divorce and custody of the child.

In the superior court Edward Holmes asks for a divorce from Emma Holmes. P. B. Colerick is plaintiff's attorney.

GEORGE S. DEWEY IS IN TOWN.

HE IS A SON OF THE HERO OF MANILA BAY.

A Modest Young Man Who Fields Dry Goods and Won't Talk of His Father's Deeds.

George S. Dewey, only son of Admiral Dewey, the hero of Manila, arrived in the city last evening, and has been spending the day in Fort Wayne. Mr. Dewey registered at the New Avenue as "Geo. S. Dewey, N. Y.," and was seen this afternoon at DeWald & Co.'s store by a representative of The Sentinel.

Mr. Dewey is connected with the commission house of Joy, Langdon & Co., of New York, and is in the city purely on a business trip. The firm of DeWald & Co. have known him in a business way for some years.

Mr. Dewey is a very modest and unassuming young man, and, like his distinguished father, shrinks from attracting attention. The features of the admiral are plainly traceable in his countenance, and while his greeting was pleasant and cordial, he declined to talk for publication.

"I am in business, not in the navy," said he, "and am not in position to talk. I greatly prefer to keep out of the newspapers, and while I am extremely glad to meet newspaper men personally, I cannot say anything for publication."

Mr. Dewey leaves the city early this evening for New York.

FOR WIFE DESERTION.

In the circuit court today the attention of Judge O'Rourke and a jury had been taken with the evidence in the case of Goldie Ellenwood vs. Warren Ellenwood, in which the wife charges her husband with desertion. The case is being bitterly contested, with A. H. Bittinger and P. B. Colerick representing the plaintiff and J. B. Harper the defendant. The arguments will not be heard until tomorrow.

JEFFERSONIAN LEAGUE.

A CHANGE OF VENUE.

In the superior court today W. O. Colerick, representing the plaintiffs in the case of Sarah J. King et al. vs. Hugh G. Keegan, trustee of the J. F. The case was sent to Judge O'Rourke, who will now rule on the petition for a temporary restraining order.

ISSUES PUT ASIDE

NOT DISCUSSED AT THE ST. LOUIS MEETING.

THE LEADERS IN CONFERENCE.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMEN IN SESSION.

COL. W. J. BRYAN IS PRESENT.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IS CANVASSED.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—With twenty-two members present in person, the democratic national committee went into secret session at 10 o'clock this morning, at the Planters' hotel. The committeemen present were: Henry D. Clayton, Alabama; Thomas C. McRae, Arkansas; Adair Wilson, Colorado; Alexander Troop, Connecticut; Clark Howell, Jr., Georgia; Thomas Caban, Illinois; John G. Shanklin, Indiana; C. A. Walsh, Iowa; J. C. Johnson, Kansas; Urey Woodson, Kentucky; T. D. O'Brien, Minnesota; W. B. Sullivan, Mississippi; W. J. Stone, Missouri; W. H. Thompson, Nebraska; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina; J. M. Griffin, Pennsylvania; James M. Woods, South Dakota; James M. Head, Tennessee; James J. Dudley, Texas; Peter J. Otey, Virginia; John T. McGraw, West Virginia; W. N. Holliday, Wyoming; Thomas Marcus, Indian Territory.

Governor Stone stated the object of the meeting as set out in the call. He was then elected chairman. Mr. Walsh was in his place as secretary.

J. M. Griffin, of Pennsylvania, who was present as proxy for Committeeman Harvitt, of that state, made a total representation of twenty-three states. Committeeman Stone, of Missouri, presided, and immediately after calling the meeting to order announced that reports of organizations and conditions in the different states were desired.

One by one the representatives of the different states outlined the conditions existing at home and the reports were accepted without recommendations of any kind.

Not one of the speakers touched upon the trusts, imperialism or silver.

After the committee had been in session an hour, Mr. Bryan was introduced and made a short address urging the members to look closely after the organizations in their states, and suggesting that strong efforts be made to provide a campaign fund for the coming campaign.

He made no specific suggestions, merely talking in a general way regarding the great advantage of organizations.

The fight of the Illinois democracy against Editor Devlin, of the National committee press bureau, was then taken up by Committeeman Gahan, of Illinois. He made a vigorous speech claiming that Devlin had acted against the regular democratic organization in Illinois, and that he should be removed. A motion was carried appointing a committee of three to investigate the Devlin matter and report to Chairman Jones upon his return from abroad. Mr. Stone appointed on the committee of investigation Messrs. Johnson, of Kansas, and Daniels, of North Carolina, the third man to be named later.

At 1:30 the conference adjourned to meet again at 8. It was officially announced that the meeting this afternoon would be along the same lines as that of this morning, matters relating to organization to be chiefly considered. No action regarding planks in the next platform is expected.

SOME OF THE GOSSIP.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—C. A. Walsh, of Ottumwa, Iowa, the secretary of the democratic national committee, recently returned from the Klondike, reached here early today.

"I was not quite as far off as they thought I was," said Mr. Walsh. "I have been in Ottawa, Canada, for the last four months, looking after some mining matters, and when I saw by the papers that this meeting had been called, I just thought I would run down and attend it. I don't know anything more than I have read regarding the objects of the meeting."

Mr. Bryan, when he arrived from Pittsfield, Ill., was very hoarse, but thought he would be able to speak at the banquet.

John P. Altgeld, of Illinois, arrived this morning and immediately set to work to repair the damage done to his fences yesterday by the Harrison forces of Illinois.

"I guess they will not impair my usefulness to any great extent," he said. "I intend to continue right along as I have been."

A number of politicians arrived early and long before the time set for the meeting of the national committee the lobbies of the Planters' hotel were filled.

They were all in a state of general uncertainty regarding the outcome of the meeting, but the feeling is growing stronger every hour that silver will not be dropped as a party issue. It is asserted on all sides that it will be a factor in the next campaign.

ALL CAN SEE COLONEL BRYAN.

THE LEADER COMES SATURDAY AT NOON.

There Will Be a Reception in the Afternoon and Probably a Short Speech.

It is definitely settled that Col. William J. Bryan will reach Fort Wayne shortly before noon Saturday. In the afternoon if the people gathered in the city desire it there will be a short informal address by Colonel Bryan either at the base ball park or from the balcony of the Randall hotel. If the weather should prove inclement the afternoon meeting will doubtless be held at the Princess rink. After the speech in the afternoon there will be a public reception at the Randall hotel and all who may care to do so will have an opportunity to extend personal greeting to the next presidential candidate of the democratic party.

These matters were arranged last evening at a meeting of the reception committee of the Bimetallic league held in the circuit court room and presided over by Hon. R. C. Bell, chairman of the committee. Much business was transacted at the meeting last night. Seventy-five seats will be reserved and tickets issued for them to a selected list to be furnished by a subcommittee of which Judge W. G. Colerick, William E. Knaugh and Edward Parker are the members. Hon. H. C. Bell, Mayor Henry P. Scherer, Judge S. M. Hench, Sheriff A. E. Melchong and County Chairman William Knaugh are the committee which will escort Mr. Bryan from Danville, Ill., to Fort Wayne, Saturday, and the party will be received at the train by Judge W. G. Colerick and Judge Edward O'Rourke. Immediately upon arrival Colonel Bryan will be driven to the West Wayne street residence of R. C. Bell for luncheon. Apart from his public appearances Colonel Bryan will be the guest of Senator Bell while in the city.

A decision was reached that all members of the county democratic central committee outside of Fort Wayne should be added to the reception committee to represent their respective townships. The secretary of the Bimetallic union was instructed to procure badges for the reception committee. These badges may be procured of Deputy Auditor Parker at the court house. A vote of the meeting resulted in choice of the Randall hotel as headquarters for all committees on Bryan day and it was determined that any public reception held should take place there.

Several sub-committees were appointed, among them one to supervise the work of the general reception committee in the matter of meeting out of town delegations at depots. Herman W. Felts, George Loutitt, Herman Michael and O. P. Eversole compose this subcommittee.

The place of holding the afternoon meeting is not yet definitely known, but the public will be amply apprised of it when selection has been made.

Word from the country and neighborhood towns and cities give assurance that the crowd will be enormous. There has been no change from original plans which make the evening meeting at the rink the formal occasion of Mr. Bryan's appearance.

RAILROAD MEN COMING.

The Big Four and the Lake Shore officials are today inspecting the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville road (Muncie line), one of the Brice lines, and will arrive in the city this evening.

This is significant, inasmuch as it has been rumored that the Vanderbilt had about concluded to buy the Brice interests, which means the controlling interest in the Lake Erie and Western railroad.

Miss Mulqueen will give her closing reception of the season at the academy, on Calhoun street, this evening.

HAD NO WARNING.

CHARLES F. MUHLER STRICKEN WITH APOPLEXY.

FELL DEAD ON THE STREET.

HAD BEEN ENJOYING GOOD HEALTH.

TWICE MAYOR OF FORT WAYNE.

HIS DEATH CAUSES SINCERE SORROW.

Charles F. Muhler, ex-mayor of the city and for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Fort Wayne, was stricken with apoplexy near his office on North Calhoun street, last evening, and died a few minutes later without regaining consciousness. No recent death in this city has so shocked the people of Fort Wayne who have known and honored and esteemed Mr. Muhler throughout his long and active life. Without a moment's warning, without an intimation of the impending danger, his life was cut off at a time when he seemed in the best of health and his radiant spirits were in the full enjoyment of the largest measure of life's happiness.

The saddening intelligence spread over the city with the greatest rapidity, and it came as a personal loss to the public. Mr. Muhler had never seemed in better health and spirits than last evening. He ate a hearty supper at his home at the corner of Wayne and Fulton streets, and later engaged in a romp with his children, until Rev. Father Durham, of the Cathedral, called. He visited with the clergyman until a few minutes after 8 o'clock, and as Father Durham departed Mr. Muhler accompanied him as far as the gate, where they parted. It was Mr. Muhler's invariable custom to walk to his office in the evening to spend some time looking over business affairs and chatting with friends, and immediately after Father Durham rode away on his wheel Mr. Muhler started down Wayne street on this mission.

He walked to Calhoun and turned north, greeting his friends on every hand with a pleasant word and a cheery smile for each. As he approached his office his son, Charles B. Muhler, who was at work upon the books there, saw his father crossing the Nickel Plate tracks and again turned to his books. William Hatch, who conducts a sample room next to the office, was standing in front of his place of business and Mr. Muhler stopped a few moments to converse with him. Mr. Hatch says Mr. Muhler was in good spirits, and talked and whistled in a happy vein. Three customers entered the Hatch saloon and the proprietor passed inside to wait upon them, leaving Mr. Muhler standing in front of the place. As one of the customers passed out of the saloon he hastily returned with a report that a man was lying upon the sidewalk. Mr. Hatch hurried out and found Mr. Muhler lying face down upon the pavement and unconscious.

He called to Mr. Muhler's son, who, with the assistance of Mr. Hatch, carried the prostrate man into the office and sent a hurried call for Dr. W. H. Myers. Mr. Muhler was entirely unconscious and was gasping for breath. A few minutes later he passed away. Dr. Myers arrived quickly, but the soul of Charles F. Muhler had taken its flight and his earthly career was ended. The remains were taken to Peltier's undertaking establishment and later conveyed to the home, where his devoted wife and children were plunged into a grief too deep for human expression. Many friends called to tender aid and sympathy in the home from

Say, Mr. Glasscock, will you please win games hereafter in the earlier innings? Often there are many strangers in the grand stand and many finishes like that of yesterday may create the impression with these strangers that they have broken into an insane asylum instead of a base ball park.

Will Carney, the young man who was so effective against the Fort Wayne in the first game with Youngstown, begged Manager Truby for an opportunity to take one more game from his old comrades and the request was granted. Carney had found only one hat big enough for him after the first game and that was three sizes too large, but another victory, he believed, would so increase the size of his cranium that he could wear this headgear without stuffing the inside band.

For eight innings luck was with Mr. Carney and it did appear as if the biggest hat in Fort Wayne was about to find an owner. But there is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip.

At the beginning of the ninth inning the score was 5 to 3 in favor of Youngstown and Bergen and Reiman, the battery, were the first batters up. "It's all off, let's go," remarked a "fan" in the fifteen-cent grand stand when Bergen went out from Carney to Ganzel. Before he could go, however, Norcum walked to the plate to bat instead of Reiman. The "fan" waited and "Doggie" Miller yelled, "If this man gets to first, it's all off." "Doggie" knows the game from A to Z and the "fan" sat down again to await the result of Miller's prophecy. Norcum walked and it was plain to be seen that Carney was getting excited. Miller was happy, too. Flood hit a hot one past first base and when McFarland fielded it in the first second baseman was perched on the second cushion and Norcum had crossed the rubber. Belden grabbed his bat and promised the newspaper gang that he would hit the ball over the fence. "One ball," shouted Umpire Colgan. Carney was mad and sent a speedy one right at the heart of the plate. "One strike," he Colgan stopped. Belden had not missed the sphere. A loud whack and the ball was seen to fly through the air like a swallow and drop on the outer side of the left field fence. It is useless to tell what happened on the bleachers and in the grand stand. Sedate men yelled and jumped. Excitable men went crazy and the ladies beamed with joy. And Carney! He looked daggers at Latimer and his actions indicated that he blamed his catcher for all the trouble. Letcher was next up and he hit the ball hard, but it went straight up and Berte gathered it in. Then "Doggie" Miller lined the ball over the fence to show Belden there were others. Glasscock singled and Kuehne walked and next Hollingsworth hit one to the right field embankment, which McFarland caught and then dropped. Glasscock and Kuehne scored. Bergen went out for the second time.

Guese pitched the ninth inning for Fort Wayne. He hit Van Buren and Connors made a two-bagger, but no runs were scored.

Fort Wayne scored the first run in the first inning. Flood was given a base on balls and went to second on an error by McFarland. Belden hit a pretty single to right and Flood scored.

The visitors scored three in the second. Truby, the first man up, made a home run. Ganzel reached first on four bad balls. McFarland sacrificed and Reiman fumbled the ball and "Mac" reached first. Berte sacrificed. Latimer's single and Belden's wild throw to the plate allowed Ganzel and McFarland to score.

Fort Wayne scored two in the third inning on Belden's base on balls, Connors' wild throw, Letcher's single, Miller's base on balls and Glasscock's line hit.

The visitors scored in their half on Fender's single, Connors' sacrifice and a single by Truby.

In the sixth Latimer sent the ball over a line over the fence. These were the only runs except those made in the ninth. Score:

hits yesterday. Criger made a home run.

George Reiman had one bad inning, but the visitors would have scored only one run then had it not been for two errors.

Flood is suffering with a sprained ankle. He hurt his leg three years ago while skating and has never fully recovered from the injury.

Belden is demonstrating that he is as safe a man to have at bat as any player on the team. He sent the first run over the plate with a single and hit the home run which practically won the game.

McCrede could not accompany his companions to Grand Rapids, but will be sent back to Youngstown. Manager Truby promised him that he would lose no salary while he was on the hospital list.

Fort Wayne plays at Mansfield tomorrow and on Saturday the teams will play a double header. Fort Wayne will play another double-header with New Castle Sunday and on Tuesday will play two games in Grand Rapids.

George Kelb has been reinstated and will be in the box for the Fort Wayne again. Many of the "fans" believed that it was an injustice to release Kelb while he was laid up with an injury received in a ball game. He is a first-class twirler and two of the three games he pitched were victories.

Hollingsworth made two great one-hand stops over second base, but couldn't recover in time to throw the batter out at first. The batters were credited with hits, but there was this much in the stops: It would have been impossible for a base-runner to score from second base, as is usually done on singles. "Holly" is at himself and covers acres of ground.

Eddie Zinram was yesterday notified by President Power that he had been appointed one of the Interstate league's official umpires. He was ordered to report in Mansfield Friday and umpire the games between Fort Wayne and the Haymakers.

Zinram has more friends than any player in the Interstate and they will all be pleased to see him make a success with the indicator.

REMARKABLE RESCUE.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this great discovery at Dreier & Bros.' drug store. Only 50 cents and $1.00,

A Perfect Piano

has never been made. There are faults of one kind or another in every piano that was ever built. We claim for the Packard Piano that it is just as well made as we know how, that we use the utmost care in the selection of material, that we employ only the best workmen, that we give all our time and thought and energy to getting into it just as much a piano goodness as possible. We could make a piano for less money than the Packard costs, but we won't. No piano can be made to sell for less than the price of the Packard and be as good. No piano made to sell at any price can be better than the Packard. You can see and hear it at our store.

Somehow Senator Peffer's return to the republican party is not received with the acclaim that indicates him to be regarded as a valuable adjunct to that political organization.

The little cabals that have for their object the retirement of Col. W. J. Bryan from leadership of the democratic party can learn a lot of things to their advantage by consulting the rank and file of the democracy.

The death of former Mayor Charles F. Muhler causes a feeling of deep and genuine grief throughout this city. The manner of his taking off made his death almost tragic. He will be sorrowfully missed by an unusual number of warm personal friends and by the community in general. Mr. Muhler was a broad-minded, public-spirited man and his citizenship has been of immense substantial value to the city. He was enterprising and intensely devoted to the welfare of Fort Wayne. It had come to pass that no public improvement for benefiting Fort Wayne was thought to be auspiciously inaugurated until Mr. Muhler was concerned in it, and he was always ready to spare of his time and means to promote all that promised well for the community. It was Mr. Muhler's reputation to have made one of the best chief executives the city has ever had. He was thoroughly practical, long-sighted, clear-minded and ruggedly honest. He was a cheery, genial man, held in uncommon warmth of affection by his closer friends, who were many, and highly esteemed by all who knew him, and there are few in the community who did not. His death is a severe loss to the city's citizenship.

THE CZAR'S OPPORTUNITY.

There is no doubt but that Russia is the most ignorant country claiming to have a civilized government. It is stated on good authority that in 10,000 villages of the empire there is not a school, and that 20 per cent. of the population have not acquired even the rudiments of a common school education. The church, which in most countries is an educator, official or voluntary, is in Russia rather a promoter of ignorance. The Russian common school priesthood is the most illiterate professing any form of the Christian faith. The army, which in Germany, Great Britain and the United States develops the intelligence of the soldier, in Russia leads on his back the heaviest knapsack in Europe and makes him an unknowing and unthinking machine. Freedom did not bring intelligence to the serf. Russia is densely ignorant, and under present conditions will remain so.

The disarmament proposition, if urged in good faith by the czar, and endorsed by the congress at The Hague, would furnish an open door from out this state of ignorance if the czar chose to embrace the opportunity. The money saved by the disarmament of 100,000 men would furnish a school for every Russian village. The disbanded soldiers would become the workmen of Russia and send their children to the schools. The czar seems to have none of the passion for military marchings and parades displayed by his royal brothers of Germany and so instead of great army reviews he would be satisfied with the "march past" of 10,000 or 12,000 school children occasionally. In place of laborious military inspections he might make recurring examinations to ascertain how some millions of young Russians were getting along with their alphabet. Following this line of action the czar might make himself a second and greater Peter the Great. He might reform Russia from the inside. Peter went abroad to seek improvements and to prove himself. Nicholas could stay at home and watch the widening circle of intelligence. Peter forced upon Russia an intelligence borrowed from other nations. Nicholas might foster in Russia a learning of its own.

It should be remembered, however, that the czar, in carrying out these plans would meet a powerful opposition. The holy synod, the main inspirer in Russia of intolerance, bigotry and ignorance, would oppose. The official body of the army would oppose anything looking to the diminution of the army or the uplifting of the body of the people who furnish the soldiers. The conservative alarmists would object that education is the mother of revolution. But if the czar should persevere, then his name would be held in honor eternally. He would be called Nicholas the Educator. He would see knowledge improve the quality of the clergy, better infinitely the condition of the soldier, make a man out of the old-time serf, and elevate the empire.

GOES TO ST. LOUIS

THERE THE PRESBYTERIANS WILL MEET.

ASSEMBLY SLIGHTS WINONA.

REFUSED TO HEAR A WORD FOR THE PLACE.

M'GIFERT CASE IS REPORTED

MEETINGS OF OTHER CHURCH CONVENTIONS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—In the Presbyterian general assembly today D. W. Glass, of Baltimore, caused a surprise by introducing a resolution directing Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the board of foreign missions, to call a conference of all the evangelical Christian bodies to meet in New York concerning a harmonious arrangement and distribution of the foreign missions. The resolution directed that the Roman Catholics be invited to participate in the conference if Dr. Brown should deem it wise.

The resolution was referred without debate to the board of foreign missions.

The Assembly Herald matter was taken up. Henry W. Jessup, of New York, defended the committee that has been conducting the paper since January 1st and moved the adoption of the committee recommendations, which include a scheme for the future management of the Herald by a committee of three.

The Assembly Herald matter was settled by the adoption of the committee's report, with the added resolution that the price of the Herald be made twenty-five cents, if possible.

St. Louis will be the next place of meeting. By an overwhelming vote the assembly adopted the committee's report in favor of the Compton avenue and Washington church, of St. Louis. Dr. W. H. McKibben withdrew Cincinnati in favor of St. Louis.

Dr. L. M. Haines, of Indiana, wanted the assembly to listen to a speech in favor of Winona Lake, Ind., but cries of "No" brought the vote. The committee on place of meeting, made up of the moderator, stated and permanent clerks, was given permanent power hereafter to name a place of meeting in case any place agreed upon by the assembly should be unable to entertain the assembly.

Dr. John E. Boyd, chairman of the standing committee on temperance, reported on the work of the special committee. The report of the latter committee has been given heretofore. Dr. Boyd complained of the revocation of the Alaska prohibition law, and Attorney General Griggs' "outrageous" interpretation of the law abolishing the army canteen.

One of the recommendations was that the assembly should appeal to President McKinley to enforce the anti-canteen law by virtue of his position as commander-in-chief, regardless of the attorney general's opinion, at least until the supreme court has passed on the matter. An attempt was made to strike out the last clause but it was voted down.

The bills and overtures committee worked all the morning on the McGiffert case and finally consolidated three reports into one. The report was scheduled for reading this afternoon. If too much time is not taken up with this case the assembly will be able to adjourn tomorrow afternoon.

The McGiffert committee brought in two reports. The majority refers the matter to the presbytery of New York; the minority recommends the New York presbytery to appoint a committee to confer with McGiffert and if he refuses to modify his views to proceed against him.

CONGREGATIONAL MEETING.

Hartford, Conn., May 25.—The business meeting of the Congregational Home Missionary society was held this morning. The report of the treasurer, William B. Howland, of New York, showed that the debt of the society would have been $60,000 less than the $133,000 debt reported but for the postponement of the payment of the legacies which will come into the treasury in the near future. The expenditures of the society for missionary work and operating expenses were less by $40,000 than they were in the preceding year and with an income from legacies equal to that of the preceding year the debt would have shown a reduction of $55,000 instead of an increase.

Rev. L. L. Taylor, D. D., of Cleveland, Ohio, reported for the executive committee. The report recommended the entrance of the society upon missionary work in Cuba, and the recommendation was adopted without debate.

Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard was re-elected president. The vice-presidents of the previous year were re-elected. Rev. William H. Holman, of Southport, Conn., was elected recording secretary, and George S. Edgell auditor.

of Southport, Conn., was elected recording secretary, and George S. Edgell auditor.

TROUBLE OVER PROHIBITION.

Denver, Col., May 25.—Considerable dissatisfaction has developed among the members of the Cumberland Presbyterian assembly over the temperance resolutions adopted on Tuesday which practically pledged the votes of members of the church to the prohibition party. A motion made today to reconsider the vote by which the resolutions were adopted was ruled out of order. It is likely, however, the question will come up again. A resolution was adopted endorsing Sabbath observance, deploring the degeneracy of the age in this respect, censuring those commissioners of the assembly who took the excursion around the loop last Sunday, and ordering the clerk to secure the names of such delegates and inform their presbyteries of their delinquency.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—Rev. W. J. Robinson, D. D., of Allegheny, Pa., was unanimously elected moderator of the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church at today's session. There were only two candidates for the honor. Rev. Dr. Robinson's opponent was the Rev. W. C. Williamson, of Keokuk, Iowa.

BAPTIST SOCIETY.

San Francisco, Cal., May 25.—The second session of the American Baptist Educational society was occupied by a conference and free discussion on the subject "Is the Establishment of a Baptist Theological School on the Pacific Coast Desirable and Feasible?" The discussion was led by Rev. Robert Whitaker, California; Rev. Alex. Blackburn, D. D., of Oregon; Rev. C. M. Hill of California, and Rev. A. B. Brown, of California. "The Aims and Methods of Theological Education" was presented by Rev. W. S. Hobart, D. D., of Yonkers, N. Y.

INTERNATIONAL Y. M. C. A.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 25.—The city is well filled with delegates to the International conference of the Young Men's Christian association, which opened this afternoon. A special reception will be given tonight at the Furniture exposition building in honor of the naval heroes present, Admiral Philip, Rear Admiral Higginson and Lieutenant Commander Wadchams. Special interest is shown in the display of work of the association of the army and navy.

MISSIONARY UNION MEETING.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL.

Hermann Gable, of the dairy firm of Gable & Sons, who was severely injured in a runaway accident one day last week, is lying very low at his home, three miles south of the city. He is unconscious the greater portion of the time.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Charles M. Romy and Bertha Romy. Henry Atba and Sarah Mathes. Salom Scof and Tedda Asad. The last license is being held by Clerk Belot until the prospective groom can raise the necessary $2 to pay for it.

Parliamentary Ignorance.

From the Kansas City Journal: At Fort Scott the other day the Presbyterians and the Methodists had an old-fashioned spelling match. With thirty-two on each side. One by one the contestants were spelled down until only two Presbyterians and one Methodist remained. Then the master gave out the word "pisan," and all three missed it, leaving a victory for neither side. Pisan is defined in the dictionary as a malicious deception used as a drink, and it is not to be expected that Presbyterians and Methodists would know much about drinks.

SLOANE IN ENGLAND

Little Jockey
Most Popular
American Abroad

It is a fact that the distinguished American, Mr. "Tod" Sloane, jockey, all of England, as well as the people in the most remote parts of Great Britain, have heard of this midday platoon knight, and his praises are sung from Land's End to Dunnet Head.

Sloane was recently presented to the Prince of Wales, and since then every sporting peer in the realm has thrown open his doors to him. But the dandified little chap who began as a stable boy on a western breeding farm is not letting pleasure interfere with his work. During his riding season he studies strictly to his training, keeps in trim and attends to business, which is to bring his mount in ahead.

It is an odd fact for Sloane when he does not ride at least three winners. This fact the visiting Americans soon appreciated. They profited by their knowledge by placing on Sloane's mounts and won large sums. At last the English bookmakers, in order to avoid bankruptcy, retaliated by marking up the odds on horses ridden by Sloane, and now an American who wins $1 puts up sometimes twice as much to get it.

As a final proof of greatness Sloane has been caricatured by S. H. Sine, the great London cartoonist. The picture shows him riding just back of the horse's ears, an allusion to "Tod's" habit of "riding forward."

A QUEER CLUB.

All the Members
Picked to Marry Widows.

In spite of the historic warning of the elder Mr. Weller, a number of young men in Peoria, Ill., have banded themselves together with the deliberate intention of getting themselves captured by widows. Their organization, for it has assumed definite shape, is known as the "Marry a Widow Club." There are 25 members in the club, all of them prosperous business men. George Richardson is president, C. B. L. Jacobs vice president, and Thorwald Burn secretary.

Each of these 25 members is pledged to marry a widow. There are no limitations whatever except the widowhood. There was a man in Peoria a few weeks ago who married a widow. He belonged to a military society. Then PRESIDENT GEORGE RICHARDSON, somebody said that everybody had been married out of that club but he came into himself, a spouse to whom the marriage business was an "old game." Thirty-five members of the society remained. They got together, organized a new club, the Oak Street, with the constitution and bylaws so framed as to bind the members under a possibly disagreeable penalty to marrying widows.

Of course the obligation does not compel a man to marry at all. He can stay single as long as he thinks it is to his best interests to do so, but once he makes up his mind to like other human beings he's got to take up the matter with a woman who has had experience.

Should a member break his pledge the club makes him pay a fine and requires the presence of attending the wedding in a box of attending at the altar of doing something else which the delinquent would naturally shun.

Mother Of Christian Science.

If the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy was not the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, she is certainly today the head and front of that movement, which is just now being brought into unusual prominence by the local attacks which are being made on it in New York. Some Christian Scientists claim that Phineas Parkhurst Quimby was the real founder of the sect. He lived in New Hampshire and died there in 1865. His friends allege that it was he who taught Mrs. Eddy the principles she now preaches and that he restored her to health.

But the great majority of Christian Scientists look upon Mrs. Eddy as the mother of their faith. She first began preaching the art of healing in Lynn, Mass., soon after the date of Mr. Quimby's death. In 1876 she published her first pamphlet, entitled "The Science of Man," which was afterward incorporated in "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures."

In her book "Retrospection and Inspiration" Mrs. Eddy says, "During 20 years prior to my discovery I had been trying to trace all physical effects to a mental cause, and in the latter part of 1896 I gained the scientific certainty that all causation was mental and every effect a mental phenomenon."

Her first complete statement of Christian Science was published in 1875 and has since been followed by many other works.

In 1881 Mrs. Eddy moved from Lynn to Boston, and there she organized a Christian Science church, a metaphysical college and also began the publication of "The Christian Science Journal." Soon after the church was opened, it is said, she was privately ordained to the ministry by her disciples, and whenever she preached, which was only three or four times a year, large crowds came to hear her. In 1889 she moved to Concord, N. H., and from there she still communicates regularly with her host of followers.

The mother church of Boston is said to have a roll of 12,000 members all over the country, and its affairs are lodged in the hands of a council of forty, which in turn is controlled by a supreme council of seven. A new church was built in Boston in 1885, and when it was opened a new commandment was found to the effect that the Bible and "Science and Health" should be its only pastors and that there should be no original discourses. It was explained that instead of discourses there would be readings by a man and woman alternately from the Bible and "Science and Health."

There are today, it is estimated, nearly 500,000 persons who believe in the doctrine of Christian Science as expounded by Mrs. Eddy. Most of these are Americans, but a good number of them are Europeans. It is also claimed that there are thousands of persons both in this country and in Europe, who believe that her doctrines are true, but who have not yet come forward publicly as her disciples. Among these persons are many of great wealth and refinement, and it is to their financial support and encouragement that the present prominence of the movement is largely said to be due.

Further proof of its success is found in the fact that over 150,000 copies of "Science and Health" have been sold and that there are over 200 churches, most of them beautiful and artistic edifices, in which Christian Scientists regularly meet to worship.

According to Mrs. Eddy, the cardinal doctrine of Christian Science is that the soul, through the power of good, triumphs over sickness and death and performs miracles of healing such as are related in the Bible. In other words, she and her disciples claim that Christian Science is the up-to-date and true form of the old Christianity and is wholly in accordance with the teachings of the Bible.

There are no ordained pastors in any of the churches established by Christian Scientists. Instead there are two books—the Bible and "Science and Health," which is expounded by Christian Scientists as the inspired word of the nineteenth century and of all ages, it is not of quite as new an authority as the Bible itself.

That this extraordinary movement will continue to prosper in spite of all local or other obstacles which may be placed in its way is the general opinion of Christian Scientists, and the ground for this belief is their conviction that the movement is inspired and consequently is beyond the power of all human adversaries.

HOT SPRINGS MASSAGE.

How the President Was Treated at the Virginia Resort.

COURSE IN MEDICO GYMNASIUM.

Nerve Compression, Poundings, Slapings and Rubbings Have Put Exercise in Good Health-Spout Bath Hardest Order, as Big Stream of Hot Water Was Trained on Him.

President McKinley and party, including Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, Comptroller and Mrs. Daves and Adjutant General Corbin, who have been staying in Hot Springs, Va., recently, returned to Washington the other night.

The marked improvement in the president's condition, due to daily massage treatment and the four or five medicated baths he has taken, is apparent to all. Carl Hillman, a Swedish masseur, called daily before breakfast at the McKinley apartments and put the president through a course of medico gymnastics.

Here is the massage treatment in detail: The masseur begins at the tips of the patient's toes, pressing the thumbs hard over the blood veins and muscles, producing a moderate friction. He thus follows the outer nerves up the legs and spine, clear to the back of the patient's head. This performance the masseur repeats two or three times. Then the operator returns to the toes and begins working slowly up the body, gently slapping the flesh with his open hands. Every space inch of the patient is covered in this way. If the patient's face is bleated, or if there be an undue clump of fat on the arms or shoulders, the masseur throws more pressure on the unyielding spots and continues the friction for a longer period.

Once more the masseur starts in at the toes, this time putting the patient through a treatment known as "nerve compression." Taking a firm grip on the flesh, he rolls and twists it as a baker kneads dough. Imagine your flesh being pinched and squeezed and you have an accurate conception of the masseur's nerve compression. Afterward the masseur strikes out for the patient's muscles and goes through a performance known as "muscle rolling." In doing this he merely rolls the muscles over the bone. This is calculated to harden and ease them. But this is not all. The masseur begins at the beginning again and with the sharp side of his hands taps the flesh lightly. This process is known as "tapping" and tends to drive any soreness from the muscles.

Next the masseur pulls the patient's leg—not in the slangy sense, but literally and actually. While the patient holds fast to an iron bar at the head of the couch, the masseur grabs the legs, twists, rolls and pulls them. The arms, likewise, are rolled and twisted, and while the masseur holds them fast at the wrist the patient is told to exert his strength by endeavoring to loosen them. An alcohol rubbing follows and after a few moments' quiet the patient is told to take his clothes and dress.

This was the treatment President McKinley underwent daily before breakfast. Is it small wonder, therefore, that he returned to Washington feeling like the proverbial 2-year-old?

The "tub" bath, which the president took twice at Hot Springs, is every compared to the massage. An ordinary porcelain tub is filled with natural hot water from the sulphur springs, a few rods away. The normal temperature of this water is 100, but in passing through the pipe five degrees of heat are lost, so the temperature when it reaches the tub is but 95. A constant stream flows through the tub. Fifteen minutes were spent in this water. The patient was then taken out, a hot sheet thrown about him, and he was asked to stretch out on a couch. A half dozen heavy woolen blankets were thrown over his body, a cold towel was placed over the forehead, and after ten minutes' sweat, the attendant came in, removed the blankets, dried the patient and then rubbed him down with alcohol. A brief wait in the cooling room and the bath was over.

There was another bath President McKinley took at Hot Springs, i. e., the "spout." First he entered the hot water tub, remained there two or three minutes, then came out and took up a position in the middle of the tiled room. Two circular iron bars raised to a height of three or four feet were brought in, the patient holding fast to them to steady himself, and a stream of water more than an inch in thickness, 115 degrees in temperature, was turned on from a spout near the ceiling. With a 20 pound pressure forcing it along, it splashed over seven or eight feet and struck the patient. A firm grasp on the iron bars is all that keeps one from being flooded when this hot stream lifts him. The attendant swears the latter about so that the water may strike the body in different places.

Care is taken to keep this hot stream from playing on the heart. People with organic heart trouble cannot withstand the "spout," and the fact that the president went through this ordeal successfully proves that his heart is in better shape than was generally supposed. Ten minutes under the spout is long enough for any one, but the president raised the limit a day or two ago and remained 15 minutes. The spout bath is put in the "back" or "sweet" bath following his exit from the spout.

"Spout" baths are given principally to rheumatics, but the president's object in taking them was to harden his muscles and to develop the sore spots in his anatomy. If there are any sore spots on one the spout will soon find them.—Special to New York World.

Ham hams for breakfast are made as follows: Take half an ounce of bread-crumbs and mix with three-quarters of a pound of lean ham chopped fine. Beat two eggs, add to the ham and form into balls with the help of a little fine Fry in deep fat and dry on paper.

Making Paper Flowers

Of all tissue-paper flowers chrysanthemums are the most effective for decoration, and when natural flowers are scarce these take their places most acceptably. Large masses of them put in a handsome vase make a beautiful spot of color. There are so many colors and shades of color among them, as well as sizes.

They are very easy to make from directions, but to achieve really artistic effects they should be copied after natural models, since there are so many varieties of this royal flower.

There are ranged ones, large and spreading, small ones scarcely larger than a nickel. Some are encircled and some incurved, so that one need not fail of finding variety.

The colors range from white to dark bronze brown, with all shades of yellow, pink and purple. The calyx is almost exactly like that of the daisy.

The buds are made by having a flattened bunch of wax, slightly rounded at the top. Over this is pasted around and around a strip of green paper of which one is slashed, as is a negative it that overlapped appearance. The center is punched together. The leaves can be purchased, all cut and pressed into shape, by the dozen, in different sizes. These are of a thick waxed variety of paper and the best, though the artist may cut hers herself, by following the model herewith, and being careful to crease them where marked.

To make chrysanthemums, cut four sets of petals, for petals of four sizes, with six each for the large in or out curved varieties, and four each for the more open and straggly kinds. The model will be found on diagram 1, Fig. 1. They may be six inches in diameter, or two, or even less, according to the kind.

The incurved ones are to be creased and each petal slightly curled at the same time, and the smallest sizes slipped over the stem and up to the calyx and turned over that, as is done in making roses. The pressure must not be great enough, however, to crush out the creases.

When all the petals are on, a few drops of mending may be dropped along in among them to hold them strongly, and then a little green wax is brought up against the outside row of petals, and this covered with shagreen flower paper makes it look like the natural growth. The petals are glued with the hat-pine like resin.

The stems to chrysanthemums are quite stiff and rather rigid. Where they do branch the junction is rather rough. The leaves almost always curl backward. Large and small ones grow close together. It is the very irregularity of leaves, flowers and branches that makes these so valuable as decorative plants.

When the bunch is ready to be mounted, the leaves are fastened to the stems by gluing the ends around them. On the diagram the mark on the leaves shows where they are to be creased. A circle like No. 3 may finish the flower as its base and also make a bud instead of the long strips.

All flowers can be copied by following nature both in cutting the petals and in making them up. Lamp shades are made of crape paper and decorated with rich ribbon tied around the upper part, and often a spray of some kind loosely fastened to one side. Small candle shades for dinner table decoration are also made of tissue paper and decorated as one's taste may dictate.

The crape paper may be purchased ready crumpled; but, as it is not always at hand, it is well to know how to make it. For a bouquet lamp shade over a wire frame it requires six sheets of soft tissue paper 18 inches wide. Paste these together to make one piece 6 yards long and 18 inches wide. Lap the edges flat and paste them and leave them to dry. When it is perfectly dry, gather it into the hands little by little until you grasp the whole six yards. Then begin and gently rub it downward, slightly twisting it at the same time until it is like a club and reduced to its smallest possible diameter.

FOR PINK LILIES AND VIOLETS.

1. Half of good lily petals, to be cut in a circle of six petals. 2. Green photo for base of petal like half of green metal for base; white also green shape. 3. Green photo for base of petals for violets. 4. Green photo for base of petals for lilies. 5. Green photo for base of petals for lilies. 6. Green photo for base of petals for lilies. 7. Violet leaf.

Then hold it up to the frame and work it around the top, spreading the bottom a little, but keeping the top close. Let the paper extend about two and a half inches above the top of the shade frame, or globe, if it is applied to a globe. When it fits around, hold it with both hands while some one craves a wire around it twice and fastens it.

The ribbon is now to be tied around it outside the wire, and the bow should be rich and ample and also graceful. When the bow is tied, take hold of the upstanding part of the paper and pull it gently to open it out to form a full rim, which, however, is to stand up. Three inches of the crape paper at the lower edge is also to be pulled smooth in the same way, which leaves it in a beautiful fluted frill.

Shades to fit down over globes may be formed of net drawn over wires twisted and fastened to fit the shape. Some are made of cardboard sewed together. The net is preferable. The paper is craped and tacked top and bottom with needle and thread. A wreath at the top and a fringe at the bottom are to be made of daisies, violets or some other flower with a flexible stem, or a moss border can be made of finely slashed and craped paper with a pretty spray of flowers at one side.

Butterfly lamp screens are made of tissue paper craped over cardboard. Their bodies are made of cotton. Their feet are of fine wire wound with paper and tipped.

Fans may be covered with crape paper, bordered with violets or some other flower or bordered with a moss and with a rose spray. A bow of ribbon on the handle makes a finish.

There really is no limit to the dainty and pretty things one can make of tissue papers. As soon as you have learned to make one thing the rest seem to come easy, and one needs no teacher, but patience and a close study of nature.

A CASTLE MAUSOLEUM.

Magnificent Burial Place Hatched Up by a Wealthy Ohio Man's Heir.

After a year's investigation in the leading cemeteries of the United States and Europe, W. H. Morgan, Edwin Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morgan, heirs of the late Thomas R. Morgan, founder of the Morgan Engineering works of Alliance, O., have decided upon plans for a magnificent mausoleum and have awarded the contract for its immediate construction to a leading New York firm of monument designers.

Over 400 tons of granite will be used in its construction and the designers claim it will be the finest private mausoleum in the United States outside of New York. The interior is patterned after the tomb of Napoleon in Paris, while the columns at the entrance are imitation of designs in famous European castles. The massive sides will be calcined with crystals for 24 bodies.

A new feature is a continuous twilight effect in the interior by a system of prismatic glasses in daytime and by hidden incandescent lights at night.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Distinct Grave.
Linger that Distinct Grave will soon be here again.

An man an more growin flowers that will be ready then
To be upon the comrades dear whose span of life is done—
The comrades brave who fought an marched with me in sixty-one.
An when th' day arrives again then an an me will spread
Th' brightest flowers we can get above my comrades dead.
An while we decorate th' graves of those who marched with me
We'll not forget th' graves of them who marched with th' old Red.

Near forty years of solemn life have banished every joy,
An we who fought each other then again are pulled apart.
Th' bloods th' old days an was washed out by th' years
We washed above our comrades' graves through all th' weary years,
An we who wore th' Union blue an those who wore th' gray
Are marchin side by side again, all for th' flag today.

An man an me are grow in flowers, th' brightest an th' best,
To lay upon th' narrow beds where soldiers heroes rest.

Yes, an an me are waitin for th' count of th' day
When we can scatter flowers upon th' graves of blue an gray.

An an we go to where they sleep we'll live again th' years
When brother fought his brother an th' land was filled with tears.
But an an we will not forget our soldier son who died.
A fightin for th' flag he loved across th' ocean while We'll decorate th' graves that day amid home's peaceful scenes.
But th' grave we'd rather decorate is in th' Philippines.

SONS OF VETERANS.

The committee in charge of the Memorial day exercises will hold a meeting this evening in the hall in the Elektron building to complete arrangements for the observance of Memorial day. Through the kindness of Judge Taylor, the committee has secured the vacant room on the lower floor of the Elektron building for making wreaths and bouquets, and here, on Monday, the 29th, the patriotic women will meet to make the tokens of the nation's remembrance of the heroes now gone.

LADIES OF THE G. A. R.

At their regular meeting last Monday night the Ladies of the G. A. R. accepted an invitation from the Sons of Veterans to assist in making the wreaths and bouquets for Memorial day, which work will be done on Monday, the 29th, in the vacant room on the lower floor of the Elektron building. It is expected that there will be a full representation of the order to assist in this patriotic work.

ROBISON PARK THEATER.

With the rising temperature comes an increase in the attendance at the Robison park theater, which is giving the best entertainment this week ever seen at that place. Zimner, the juggler, and Rossaire, swinging wire artist, are deserving of special notice, as their performances were never equalled hereabouts. The entire show is good and deserves a better patronage than it has received so far. Amusement Manager A. J. You has arranged for good shows during the entire season and as soon as warm weather arrives the people will no doubt show their appreciation of his efforts in this direction by filling the theater every evening.
